U.S. Troops Crush Red Counterattacks

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. forces crushed a North Vietnamese counterattack near Dong Ha Thursday climaxing four days of fighting in the northeast corner of South Vietnam in which allied troops reported 1,303 of the enemy killed.

U.S. and South Vietnamese casualties totaled 108 men killed and 541 wounded in battles around Dong Ha and Hue, the allied commands said.

Fighting slackened off today after U.S. Marines and Army infantry reinforcements beat back a heavy enemy counter attack near the 3rd Marine Division headquarters at Dong Ha 11 miles below the eastern end of the demilitarized zone.

The North Vietnamese launched their counterattack Thursday afternoon and pushed the Marines back. Army troops were rushed in as reinforcements, artillery and U.S. planes pounded the North Vietnamese, and by nightfall "the enemy withdrew," a U.S. spokesman said.

He added that the enemy made light probing attacks for two hours before contact was lost.

There was no word of new fighting by South Vietnamese forces who have been battling the North Vietnamese a mile or two from the Marines in the Dong Ha sector.

The other northeast area of hard fighting this week has been around Hue, 45 miles south of Dong Ha, and there paratroopers from the U.S. 82nd Airborne Division reported overrunning enemy positions four miles west of the former imperial capital and killing 46 North Vietnamese soldiers. There were no American casualties reported.

Saigon had its first major terrorist incident since the Communist lunar new year offensive in February. A taxi loaded with TNT exploded in the heart of the city, in a driveway between the U.S.-South Vietnamese television and radio station compound and a church student center.

The blast killed three Vietnamese and wounded about 25 Vietnamese and five Americans. Most of the victims were young girl students.

Avoids Political Links

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson, withholding a commitment to campaign for his party's presidential nominee, struck out today at those who by "pursuing personal ambitions" divide the country.

And he told members of Congress to vote on his tax increase instead of trying to "blackmail someone."

United States is agreeable to starting preliminary Vietnam peace talks in Paris about May 10.

Johnson said he would discuss the question of campaigning for the Democratic nominee "after the convention" next August "when we see what the situation is."

But, after the reference to "personal ambitions," Johnson said there are "too many people thinking too much of self and too few people thinking of country." He mentioned no names.

The President voiced concern about the danger of violence erupting from the planned Poor People's Campaign. The march on Washington by thousands of poor "contains many inherent dangers," he said. "We're concerned with them. We've made extensive preparations."

Wearing a portable microphone and frequently moving from behind the podium set up in the White House East Room, the President delivered his strongest plea yet for prompt action on his proposed 10 per cent tax surcharge.

"I think we are courting danger by this continued procrastination, this continued delay," he said. He rejected sharp cuts in his budget, saying the time has come for "all members of Congress to be responsible," and stand up like men and vote. He added:

"Don't hold up a tax bill until you can blackmail someone."

Johnson indicated the agreement on preliminary peace talks had not altered his March 31 decision not to seek re-election.

He skirted a direct answer when asked what qualities he wanted to see in the man who succeeds him in the White House, but said the question is not "nearly as much the individual's personality as it is his background and his training and his philosophy."

Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey has been stressing his experience and training as he seeks the Democratic nomination. The other two candidates, Sens. Robert F. Kennedy and Eugene J. McCarthy, have been critical of administration policies.

Johnson said he would not urge a moratorium on political discussion of peace talks.

Exchange Acts On Agreement

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market advanced vigorously today in the wake of the agreement between the United States and North Vietnam to open preliminary peace talks in Paris.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was up 7.46 points at 925.51, down from the $91-point advance of an hour earlier.

Trading was very heavy with the New York Stock Exchange ticker lagging 24 minutes in reporting transactions. The first-hour volume of 6.32 million shares on the exchange tied the record for the period set April 3.

Some brokers predicted a new daily record of shares traded, topping the 20.41 million-share mark set last April 10.

The advance was on a broad scale with motors, rails, oils and chemicals pacing the advance. Gains by individual stocks topped declines by about 650 issues.

The market had gained 77.38 points since President Johnson announced on March 31 the curtailment of bombing of North Vietnam and that he would not seek re-election.

Agree to Talk

The United States and North Vietnam agreed to meet in Paris late next week to start discussing conditions for possible Vietnam peace talks. The U.S. named Cyrus Vance, a special Presidential troubleshooter, and Ambassador at Large W. Averell Harriman to take part on the talks. North Vietnam said its representative will be Xuan Thuy, minister without portfolio, and Mai Van Bo, Hanoi's top diplomat in the western world. (UPI)

Wage Hikes Defeat Anti-Inflation Bid

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Johnson administration is losing ground at an ever-faster pace in its bid to keep wage increases this year at what it considers noninflationary levels.

Instead of backing off from last year's level as the administration had hoped it would, the pattern of wage settlements so far has climbed even higher.

The 6.5 per cent annual settlement announced Thursday by the Communications Workers of America and the Bell Telephone System is only the latest in a string of wage pacts far exceeding administration wishes.

There was no immediate comment from the Council of Economic Advisers on the telephone settlement—which still faces a ratification vote—but administration officials undoubtedly feel it's inflationary even if they don't say so publicly.

In its annual report last February, the council called for union settlements this year "appreciably lower" than the 5.5 per cent average for 1967 increases. It called for restraint by business to hold the price line.

The council fixed no exact wage-price guideline, such as its 3.2 per cent recommendation in 1966, and it said unions couldn't be expected to hold their demands to 3 per cent this year—a level representing the increased cost of living in 1967.

But here's what has happened so far this year: —Average wage settlements approached 6 per cent during the first quarter of this year, according to administration officials.

—Settlements in the key construction industry are already approaching 8 per cent with demands in some areas for wage increases reportedly as high as 33 per cent.

The council has never abandoned its classic wage-price guideline that, in theory at least, maintains that price stability can be achieved only when wage increases are geared to increased productivity.

An exact figure was abandoned in 1967 when it became apparent a fixed guideline would be unrealistic—and after the 1966 guideline was exceeded repeatedly. But the guideline theory is still dear to the hearts of government economists.

Some administration leaders see President Johnson's call for higher taxes—along with congressional demands for spending cuts—as the key to renewed wage-price restraint.

Hall urged a House appropriations subcommittee to block the consolidation planned by the Public Health Service. He said the Neosho depot, which is located in a limestone mine, "possesses a number of advantages" over the "above-ground, frame construction, World War II warehousing site at Dixon."

The Neosho depot is owned by Ozark Terminal, Inc., a private corporation.

The consolidation was disclosed Monday when the subcommittee released the March 7 testimony by Dr. Henry C. Huntley, PHS Division of Health Mobilization director, who said the consolidation would bring "a calculated savings of $146,000 a year."

But Hall charged in his March 28 testimony only the savings claimed were "virtually nonexistent" since they did not include the cost of moving 24 million pounds of supplies and other relevant costs.

Hall said Neosho had the advantages of fallout protection since it was underground and "constant temperature, easily controlled humidity, dust-free, fireproof storage and other factors."

Paris Chosen As Ideal Spot

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and North Vietnam agreed today to open preliminary peace talks in Paris next Friday or a few days thereafter.

President Johnson announced at a 10 a.m. news conference he had sent word to Hanoi that he accepts the time and place Hanoi had announced to the world two hours earlier.

Johnson said he was informed of the North Vietnamese agreement at 1 a.m. today. He then conferred with Secretary of Defense Clark M. Clifford, Secretary of State Dean Rusk and other high officials and made his decision.

Hanoi announced its purpose in the talks would be "to decide with the U.S. side the unconditional cessation by the United States of its bombing and all other acts of war against the Democratic Republic of Vietnam North Vietnam and later to talk about other matters related to the two sides."

Johnson ordered March 31 a partial halt in bombing of the North and called for peace talks. He offered to stop the rest of the bombing if Hanoi would show "restraint" in its military operations.

But U.S. officials report Hanoi since early March has greatly increased infiltration of men and weapons into South Vietnam.

Asked about this today Johnson said "we have been quite concerned" about the North Vietnamese expanding infiltration.

The President warned the Paris talks would be only the "first step" toward bringing the long and bloody war in Southeast Asia to a close.

"Let me sound a precautionary note," Johnson said after announcing his decision. "This is only a very first step, and there are many, many hazards and difficulties ahead."

"I have never felt it was useful for public officials to confuse delicate negotiations by detailing personal views" in advance, Johnson went on. So, he said, he would not discuss the question further now.

It was exactly a month ago today that North Vietnam and the United States publicly declared their readiness for such talks, thus signaling a potential breakthrough in the long effort to begin peace discussions.

The forthcoming discussions are expected to be only preliminary to what could be much-drawn-out negotiations.

For the preliminary contacts, the United States had proposed 15 Asian and European capitals (See PARIS, Page 4.)

Journalism Honor For Ben Weir

The program was part of Journalism Week on the university campus.

Individual awards went to Weir and to Seymour Topping, foreign news editor of the New York Times.

Citations to organizations and the individuals accepting them were:

Swenson, executive director; Encyclopedia Britannica, by Sir William Haley, editor-in-chief, and the Saturday Review, by Richard L. Tobin, managing editor.

Born near Lee's Summit, Mo., Weir was graduated from high school in Atchison, Kan., where he began his newspaper career. He worked for eight years in advertising and business offices of the Maryville Daily Forum, and he has been publisher of the Nevada Daily Mail since 1943.

A former pre-law student at Pittsburg State College, Weir has served as president of the Missouri Press Association, Ozark Press Association, Missouri Associated Dailies and Democratic Editors of Missouri.

Strongest Appeal Yet for Tax Hike

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson delivered today his strongest appeal yet for Congress to act on his tax increase proposal, and told those demanding deeper spending cuts:

"Don't hold up a tax bill until you can blackmail someone."

The President told a nationally televised news conference his first since last November that "we are courting danger" by continued delay on the tax proposal.

He called on Congress members to "stand up like men and vote" to pass the tax bill.

He said that he remains personally opposed to spending cuts but that he has reluctantly agreed to the plan approved this week by the House Appropriations Committee. That would cut spending by $4 billion and appropriations by $18 billion in an effort to pave the way for the tax bill.

But he said Senate-approved spending cuts of $6 billion "would really bring chaos to the government."

Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., of the House Ways and Means committee, one of those who has been demanding sharp spending cuts, said the committee will take a new look at the situation Monday.

The Security Council had called on the Israelis to cancel the parade, contending it would harm chances of a peace agreement with the Arabs. Thursday night the council slapped Israel's wrist with a unanimous resolution "deeply deploring" the holding of the parade.

Marianne Baratta holds up a jar of jelly beans that may help to save her life. The 16-year-old girl has been told that she has less than a month to live—unless $40,000 can be raised to buy an artificial kidney machine to prolong her days and pay for a transplant operation. The jelly beans were a gift from Governor Ronald Reagan and will be part of a list of things to be auctioned off in an attempt to raise the money. Marianne is from Granada Hills, Calif. (UPI)

Bands Ready To Compete In Battles

The Sedalia Jaycees will sponsor their annual Battle of the Bands dance at Convention Hall in Liberty Park Friday and Saturday nights, from 8 p.m. to 11 p.m.

Small rock 'n roll bands will be in the competition. The winner of each night's competition will compete May 18 in the final battle.

The final winner will compete in the state contest in Kansas City on June 1. Some 34 communities will be in the state contest, with the winning band to receive a $1,000 recording contract.

Proceeds from the project will be used in youth development programs.

Pastor's Comment

By The Rev. Chas. A. Pfeiffer
St. Patrick Church

The meaning of words and phrases changes. We adults use the words "family life" as meant in an agricultural and pastoral society. In a farming or shepherding society families lived apart and met only occasionally.

To the father and sons tell the task of protecting the family and clan against starvation, cold and more animate enemies. His physical strength and contact with the world outside the family gave the husband a superiority within the family group.

To the mother and daughter came the task of preparing to feed and clothe the family with what the hunter, shepherd and farmer brought home. No need of a warlike attitude and the lack of contact outside the home fitted the wife to train the youngsters in the gentler arts and to docility to the provider and protector of the family.

To youth fell the task of absolute obedience to those who protected, provided and taught survival and advancement. Most of the work and recreation of the family was as a unit.

Jesus, Paul and their Hebrew ancestors phrased the Judaic-Christian teaching about the family for a people who farmed and cared for livestock. The stable culture of the time framed the ideas. In the more or less quiet, orderly, predictable routine of daily life the divine ideas assumed an understandable wording.

The frame work upon which those ideas lived has changed. The framework of our scientific, industrial, urban society has wrinkled and

Church and Food Go Together According to Church Maitre'd

EASTON, Mass. (AP) — Faith and food go together, as Brother Herman E. Zaccarelli sees it. To him, dedication to Christianity involves dedication to an efficient, quality cuisine.

In fact, that's his church calling — on a big scale.

"Seeing to it that people eat better is one of the most basic Christian services you can give," he said. "It's participating in the continuing creativity of God in the world—the refreshment and nourishing of human life."

Out of his youthful frustrations as a hotel busboy and later as a kitchen supervisor in Holy Cross seminary here, Brother pricked the canvas as painted in another time for another frame.

Terry, a student at Smith-Cotton High School, was also elected secretary of the state congress for the 1968-69 term.

The divine ideas are still as true as when Jesus and Paul spoke. It is, and has been, the time to examine our understanding of those divine ideas. In our everyday lives we have rejected the rustic, static form of family life as impossible. We continue to speak of the family life of our youth as the ideal — but, in practice, an impossible ideal.

Will we reach the point where we reject even the truths expressed in that supposed ideal? Or will we search that ideal for the kernel truths and express them for our society? A real truth cannot change! The understanding and wording of the truth can.

Legal Battle Is Shaping Up Over What a Church Teaches

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

A far-reaching legal battle is shaping up today over whether an arm of government can decide what a Christian church is supposed to teach.

The issue stems from Georgia court rulings that a major Protestant denomination has not properly adhered to its doctrine and therefore two congregations could pull out and take church property with them.

Broad religious concern centers on an appeal being readied for the U.S. Supreme Court.

Church legal experts say it's the first time in the United States that an instrumentality of the state has acted to pass judgment on whether a religious body is rightly promulgating its faith.

Directly involved is the million-member Presbyterian Church in the U.S.

But there were wide implications for other denominations, with immense property holdings at stake, and more basically, the historic church position that the state can't specify what constitutes doctrinal fidelity.

"I think nearly every denomination is disturbed by this thing," says Arad Riggs, a

New York attorney and counsel for the Reformed Church in America. "What the Georgia court has done is to usurp the right of the church to define itself."

Ultimate outcome of the case could effect numerous other lawsuits brewing across the country, involving similar questions of church teachings and practices, and control of millions of dollars in parish buildings.

In the Georgia case, two Savannah congregations, the Hull Memorial Presbyterian church and the Eastern Heights Presbyterian church, quit the denomination, claiming it had departed from its faith, and that they as its authentic heirs were entitled to keep local property.

A county court jury made up mainly of Baptists upheld the claim, finding that the Presbyterian denomination had "deviated substantially" from its doctrines and practices. The Georgia Supreme Court has sustained the decision.

"In a controversy like this, for a court to say what constitutes the 'true church' or what doesn't, is getting into pretty ticklish territory," commented the Rev. Dr. C. Emanuel Carlson, of Washington, D.C., head of the Joint Baptist Committee on Public Affairs.

Often the conflict within denominations has arisen—as it did in the Georgia case—over congregational opposition to denominational stands for racial integration, involvement in social issues and participation in the National Council of Churches, a cooperative agency of most major Protestant denominations.

Richard T. Cowan, attorney for the two Savannah churches, said the outcome would be felt all over the country, particularly in the South, where many congregations are considering disaffiliation from national bodies.

Frank S. Cheatham Jr., attorney for the denomination in the case, said the decision—if not overturned—could open a "Pandora's box" of litigation allowing congregations to quit denominations and claim property on the ground that parent bodies held wrong beliefs, thus making courts arbiters of religion.

He says this breaks with the U.S. tradition separating church and state.

Among recent related cases, a federal appeals court in New Orleans rejected an attempt by a majority of Trinity Methodist church in Mobile, Ala., to wrest property away from the denomination after deciding to leave it.

The outcome was similar in two Methodist cases in South Carolina in which majorities of congregations sought to sever property from the denomination, but which was retained by a minority loyal to it.

Ordinarily, when members are divided, courts have held that those adhering to the denomination keep the property, since it was paid for and built—often generations back—by denominational supporters, and present members hold it only as a passing trust, not to be diverted from its purpose.

In Detroit, a protracted court struggle is going on regarding Mayflower church, a minority of whose members claim its property on ground that affiliation with the United Church of Christ is contrary to their Congregationalist tenets.

The denomination is a merged body including Congregationalists. Allegiance to it is favored by a majority of the Mayflower church, but the minority claims it is a "radical departure" from the faith.

On the West Coast, property fights are in the courts over three United Presbyterian churches—Laurelhurst and Hillcrest in Seattle and Community church at Palm Springs, Calif.

Majorities of members want to leave the denomination and take the property, claiming the denomination has veered from the faith.

Trinity Will Honor High School Grads

The Lutheran Church Women have prepared a program entitled "A Night to Remember."

Rocky Is Glad to Be In Race

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Pacing the aisle of a campaign bus in a sweat-soaked shirt, hitting it off well with the crowds—Nelson A. Rockefeller in his first full day of campaigning for the presidency seemed a man glad to be in the race at last.

After his announcement Wednesday that he was going after the Republican nomination, the New York governor hopped to Iowa Thursday for a day of campaigning.

It was, he said, "one of the most exhilarating days of my life."

Rockefeller was interrupted 16 times by applause in a speech before some 8,000 persons at the University of Iowa as he called for voting at age 18 and a lottery plan to pick draftees.

Later, on his way to a fund-raising dinner in Cedar Rapids—another friendly audience—he couldn't sit still in his campaign bus.

Shucking his coat, he kept prowling the length of the bus, his shirt clammy with perspiration, as he spun off ideas and swapped thoughts with a group of students in the back.

Rockefeller planned to return to New York today but didn't disclose where he would appear next in pursuit of the voter.

Richard M. Nixon, who has a head start of months on Rockefeller in the quest for the GOP nomination, touched again Thursday on the "black capitalism" concept he recently introduced.

In a nationwide radio address from Indianapolis, Ind., the former vice president said tax incentives and loan guarantees could help many Negroes to become owners of their businesses and "remove the ceiling from black aspiration."

Nixon is the only Republican on the ballot in Indiana's primary next Tuesday. But the Democratic contest that day continues to grow in import.

Aides of Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., say that if he wins 30 per cent of the vote in the three-man competition he will interpret this as a signal to press on in his fight for the presidential nomination.

During a wide-ranging day of campaigning Thursday in Indiana, McCarthy seemed to be saying—or at least suggesting—that he expects to trail Sen. Robert F. Kennedy in the primary.

The third Democrat in the race is Gov. Roger D. Branigin, a favorite son trying to keep Kennedy or McCarthy from getting their hands on the votes the Indiana delegation will take to the Democratic National Convention.

Kennedy also put in a strenuous day among the Hoosiers. One handshake lasted a split second too long as his open convertible was moving through South Bend and the candidate tumbled out onto the pavement.

Afterward, he exhibited a puffed upper lip.

Not entered in the Indiana primary, the third Democrat out to bag the nomination, Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, continued his efforts to establish an identity separate from, but in harmony with, his job as vice president.

"I shall run on the record of the Kennedy-Johnson, Johnson-Humphrey administrations," he said in Philadelphia, "but I won't rest on it."

The East Is Deadly

WASHINGTON (AP) — The place a man calls home can often mean the difference between life and death after he has reached middle age, a new federal study reports.

For the white man 45 to 64, it says, the death risk is twice as great if he lives in an Eastern city instead of a rural area of the central or western United States.

The highest-risk states it listed as Hawaii, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Nevada, northern Arizona, parts of Louisiana, southern Mississippi

To Study Campus Crisis

By BOB MONROE
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — A Columbia University faculty committee has moved to create a fact-finding commission to inquire into the causes of the crisis that has convulsed the Ivy League campus for 10 days.

The 12-member committee—a key group in the effort to end the student protest—took the action Thursday. They agreed the commission should be headed by an outsider but did not decide on its size or composition. With few exceptions, classes were suspended again Thursday and east-central Pennsylvania. States with the lowest risk: North Dakota, Nebraska, Minnesota, Kansas, New Mexico, Oregon, Colorado, Texas, Iowa and Missouri.

The findings were in a report released Thursday by the U.S. Public Health Service.

It said that in general, urban and other heavily populated areas have higher risk rates for middle-aged men than rural areas.

The reasons for these differences are not known, said Herbert I. Sour, a statistician for the National Center for Chronic Disease Control.

He said health experts are considering as possible causes such "risk factors" associated with heart disease as cigarette smoking, overweight, diet and the stresses and strains of life in various regions.

The heavily populated area between Boston and Washington, D.C., has a death-rate risk generally in middle to upper levels. The West Coast, other than Oregon, is mostly in the middle-risk rate range, the study said.

Sour said middle-aged white men develop cardiovascular disease three times faster than women of the same age and coronary heart disease five times faster.

"This is of increasing concern because only 50 years ago there was little difference between male and female rates," he said.

Accidents

A car driven by Leila J. Button, 23, Warsaw, struck and killed a deer on West Highway 50, a mile and a half east of the Pettis-Johnson County line, at 8:10 a.m. Thursday, according to Trooper Charles Pieper of the Missouri Highway Patrol, who investigated.

According to Pieper, the accident occurred as the car was being driven west on Highway 50 and two deer ran onto the road and the driver tried to go between them and struck one as it ran into the side of the car.

Trooper Piper reported the car was damaged on the right side.

Police Court

William Caywood, Blue Springs, Mo., careless and imprudent driving, pleaded innocent and was dismissed.

Mary L. Kretzer, 1307 South Kentucky, careless and imprudent driving, pleaded innocent and was dismissed.

John Veach, Osceola, careless and imprudent driving, forfeited a $25 bond.

Marion L. Bass, 812 East 10th, running a stop sign, forfeited a $5 bond.

Amos Bailey, 1105 East Sixth, running a red light, forfeited a $5 bond.

Clyde Hall, 315 East Third, violation of the anti-litter ordinance, dismissed by the prosecuting witness.

A charge of assault against Thomas Jerel Byrd, 500 West Cooper, was dismissed for a lack of a prosecuting witness, and he was fined $50 and sentenced to 45 days in the county jail each on separate charges of assault and disturbance of the peace.

Cecil Lappat, Route 1, driving while intoxicated, forfeited a $100 bond.

Police Report

Police reported that the Kiwi Car Wash in the 700 block of South Limit was hit by thieves between 11:30 p.m. Wednesday and 2:14 a.m. Thursday. The chamois machine had been pried open and the money taken from the coin box.

Sedalia police reported Friday a break-in at the Central News Agency, 2100 West Main, during the night.

According to the report, thieves took a small safe, an unknown amount of cash, and approximately $300 in checks.

for possible meeting places while North Vietnam had suggested Phnom Penh or Warsaw.

The Indonesians meanwhile, offered to send a cruiser to Tonkin Gulf as a meeting place.

The North Vietnamese broadcast today indicated an end to the stalemate. As received by U.S. monitors, Hanoi Radio said:

"The Democratic Republic of Vietnam (North Vietnam government) is of the opinion that formal talks between Hanoi and Washington should be undertaken immediately."

"It decides to send Minister Xuyen Thuy as its representative to hold formal talks with a representative of the U.S. government to decide with the U.S. side the unconditional cessation by the United States of its bombing and all other acts of war against the Democratic Republic of Vietnam and later to talk about other matters related to the two sides."

"The Democratic Republic of Vietnam government welcomes the fact that the French government is willing to let Paris be the site between the Democratic Republic of Vietnam and the United States as declared by French (foreign) Minister Couve De Murville on 18 April 1968."

"The DRV government is of the opinion that Paris, just as Phnom Penh and Warsaw, is an appropriate venue for the formal and bilateral talks."

"These formal talks will begin on 10 May or a few days later."

'Crichton' Failed As A TV Play

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Sir James Barrie's turn-of-the-century comedy, "The Admirable Crichton," has not survived years and change very well, even with the help of some plastic surgery in the form of a TV adaptation.

The play was the last of the season's "Hall of Fame" series on NBC and was, perhaps, the most disappointing of all.

In a day when the word "servant" is used primarily by politicians on the campaign trail and when the live-in domestic is almost as rare as the golden eagle, it is hard for the contemporary audience to identify with the horrendous social problems posed by Sir James' little fable.

The play began as a Colonel Blimp type, Lord Loam, was about to make his annual demonstration of a democratic philosophy by having his three daughters and their beaus entertain his household staff at a formal tea.

It was made clear immediately that, while the daughters snobbishly deplored the custom, the party was a definite ordeal for the ladies, maids, cook, chauffeurs and gardeners.

But it was his lordship's butler, Crichton, pronounced cry-ton, who believed most devoutly in caste distinctions.

Then the Loam family and friends—two foppish fiancées—were shipwrecked on one of those lovely "Gilligan's Island" tropic spots with Crichton and one of the kitchen maids.

As was inevitable in a play that telegraphed its twists and turns far in advance, Crichton was forced to take command of the party. And, naturally, the aristocrats moved into the servants' roles.

"The Admirable Crichton" could have only one ending. The party was rescued after several years on the island. And everybody reverted to his old role and position in life upon returning home. Except Crichton, who found himself over the shipwrecked party so exhilarating that he decided to get out of service.

Bill Travers, a British actor, played Crichton with the stiff formality of a Wodehouse character. His wife, Virginia McKenna, was the lord's daughter and the subject of his island romance.

Although the material left much to be desired, and the comedy lines of a 1900 satire often seemed more silly than witty, the 90-minute program was still a treat to the eye. The settings were beautiful and so were the costumes.

To Study Campus Crisis

The militants charge the gym on 2.1 acres of land leased by the city in the 30-acre park would deprive Harlem residents of recreational property.

Columbia had said it would provide facilities within the building for Harlem residents but critics termed the concession "separate but unequal."

Later the protesters added demands for a voice in policy making and for the resignations of university President Grayson Kirk and Provost David B. Truman.

University trustees agreed to consider recommendations for changes in the basic structure of the 214-year-old school and to consult with community leaders on the fate of the gym as concessions to the protesters.

The board of trustees asked the 12-member faculty committee—created Tuesday after police routed demonstrators who had occupied five campus buildings—to make a similar study of possible structure changes.

Dan Pellegrom, 23, president of the Columbia Student Council and a supporter of a plan for a student strike when classrooms reopen, said of the plan: "It's difficult to judge—but it's a beginning."

Freeze Mushrooms

Choose mushrooms free from spots and decay. Sort according to size. Wash thoroughly in cold water. Trim off ends of stems. If mushrooms are larger than 1 inch across, slice them or cut them into quarters.

Mushrooms may be steamed or heated in fat in a fry pan. Steam — Mushrooms to be steamed have better color if given ant-darkening treatment first.

Dip for 5 minutes in a solution containing 1 teaspoon lemon juice or 1½ teaspoons citric acid to a pint of water. Then steam:

Whole mushrooms, 5 minutes (not larger than 1 inch across). Buttons or quarters, 3½ minutes. Slices, 3 minutes. Cool promptly in cold water and drain.

To heat in fry pan — Heat small quantities of mushrooms in table fat in an open fry pan until almost done. Cool in air or set pan in which mushrooms were cooked in cold water. Pack into containers, leaving ½" head space. Seal and freeze.

Freeze Pineapple

Select firm, ripe pineapple with full flavor and aroma. Pare and remove core and eyes. Slice, dice, crush or cut the pineapple into wedges or sticks.

Unsweetened pack — Pack fruit tightly into containers without sugar. Leave head space. Seal and freeze.

Sirup pack — Pack fruit tightly into containers. Cover with 30 per cent sirup made with pineapple juice, if available, or with water. Leave head space. Seal and freeze.

Freeze Strawberries

Strawberries — Packed in sugar.

Pride of the freezer are strawberries — sliced, sweetened with dry sugar, and frozen. For other fruits packed in sugar, follow the general steps shown here. A pint plastic box is the container illustrated, but other types of containers may also be used.

Select firm, ripe strawberries — about two-thirds quart berries are needed for each pint frozen.

Wash berries a few at a time in cold water. Lift berries gently out of water and drain.

Remove hulls; then slice berries into a bowl or shallow pan.

Sprinkle sugar over berries — ¼ cup to each quart (one and one-third pounds) berries. Turn berries over and over until sugar is dissolved and juice is formed.

Pack berries in container, leaving ½ inch head space in the wide-mouth pint box. Place a small piece of crumpled parchment paper on top of berries. Press berries down into juice.

Press lid on firmly to seal. Be sure the seal is watertight.

Label package with name of fruit and date frozen. Freeze; then store at 0 degrees F. or below.

Copies of Home Freezing of Fruits and Vegetables, Home and Garden Bulletin No. 10, U.S. Department of Agriculture, are available at the University Extension Center.

selecting an absolutely delicious steak? It's no secret if you know something about beef quality and the different cuts. A new publication from the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Consumer and Marketing Service can help you select steaks more wisely. "How to Buy Beef Steaks" contains information on the USDA grades for beef — such as USDA Prime, Choice and Good.

This booklet also illustrates the various cuts of steak and suggests cooking methods and amounts you'll need per serving.

It explains the difference between the shield-shaped grade mark — a mark of quality, and the round inspection mark — a mark of wholesomeness.

Only meat which has first passed a strict inspection for wholesomeness may be graded. So you may be sure when you see the grade mark that the meat came from a healthy animal and was processed in a sanitary plant.

Meat grading is a voluntary service provided by USDA's Consumer and Marketing Service to meat packers and others who request it and pay a fee for the service. So not all meat is graded — although a large percentage of beef is.

A few specific tips from "How to Buy Beef Steaks" are: Some cuts of beef are naturally more tender than others, regardless of the quality grade. Cuts from the less-used muscles along the back of the animal — the rib and loin sections — will always be more tender than those from the active muscles such as the shoulder (chuck), and round.

If you like steak broiled medium rare, it's wise to buy one that's at least one inch thick. Steaks less than an inch thick usually are done by the time they are browned on both sides.

Unusual School For Horses

By FRANK FARMER
Springfield Newspapers, Inc.
For The Associated Press
SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP) — On his Asher Creek Ranch, 10 miles northwest of Springfield, Don Mullins runs one of the nation's most unusual schools, a cutting horse school.

He trains horses in the art of separating a cow critter from the herd. Simultaneously, he teaches the owners of the mount the finer points of "cutting."

"Cutting is not a science, with patterns and formulas," Mullins says. "It is an art, with different techniques devised and applied in each individual instance."

"Every man is different, every horse is different and even after they learn as much as they can, they have a different situation, because of the individuality of the cattle, each time they work."

The cutting horse used to be the specialist horse in the cowboy's remuda, back when the West was young and cattle were worked on the open range. He was the most intelligent, the most agile horse in the remuda, and his rider the best cowboy. As ranching methods changed, he became less in demand for actual work — but the sport of riding cutting horses had already cut on.

Today the sport is gaining ground rapidly. There are several thousand cutting horse contests held around the United States, and purses total $500,000. The top prize is a $40,000 purse paid at the annual National Cutting Horse Association Futurity.

Communities throughout the United States hold jackpot cutting contests from May through October. Riders enter their horse, pay a fee of perhaps $15, and the total fees are split among the top four or five contestants.

The makings of a cutting horse start with selection of a young Quarter horse with "cow sense." By definition the Quarter horse is one that can exhibit great speed at distances up to a quarter of a mile. Mullins likes to break his horses as a 2-year-old, then begins general ranch work, such as riding pastures and following cows around for 60 to 90 days. Then he'll return the animal to pasture until the next year.

"We get serious with the 3-year-olds," Mullins says "and start working cattle in pens with them. We work slowly until the horse learns his positions and starts watching the cows, then gradually work faster."

As the training progressed the use of spur and rein lessen. If all goes well, after a year and a half of training the horse is ready for competition.

If the horse has "cow sense" and if the rider has been taught to counteract every move of the steer as it races back to the herd, riding can be something like sitting atop a tornado. A cutting horse can leave astraddle nothing but air quicker than you can blink.

"It's America's great sport," Mullins says. "And once you've ridden a cuttin' horse, you've got the disease."

Unexpected Surplus

AUBURN, Maine (AP) — The School Department ended the fiscal year with an unexpected surplus on the books. School Supt. Lewis E. Webber says the department's appropriation was $2,053,626.17 and expenses totaled $2,053,625.54. Now the school board has to decide what to do with that extra 63 cents.

An Open GOP Convention

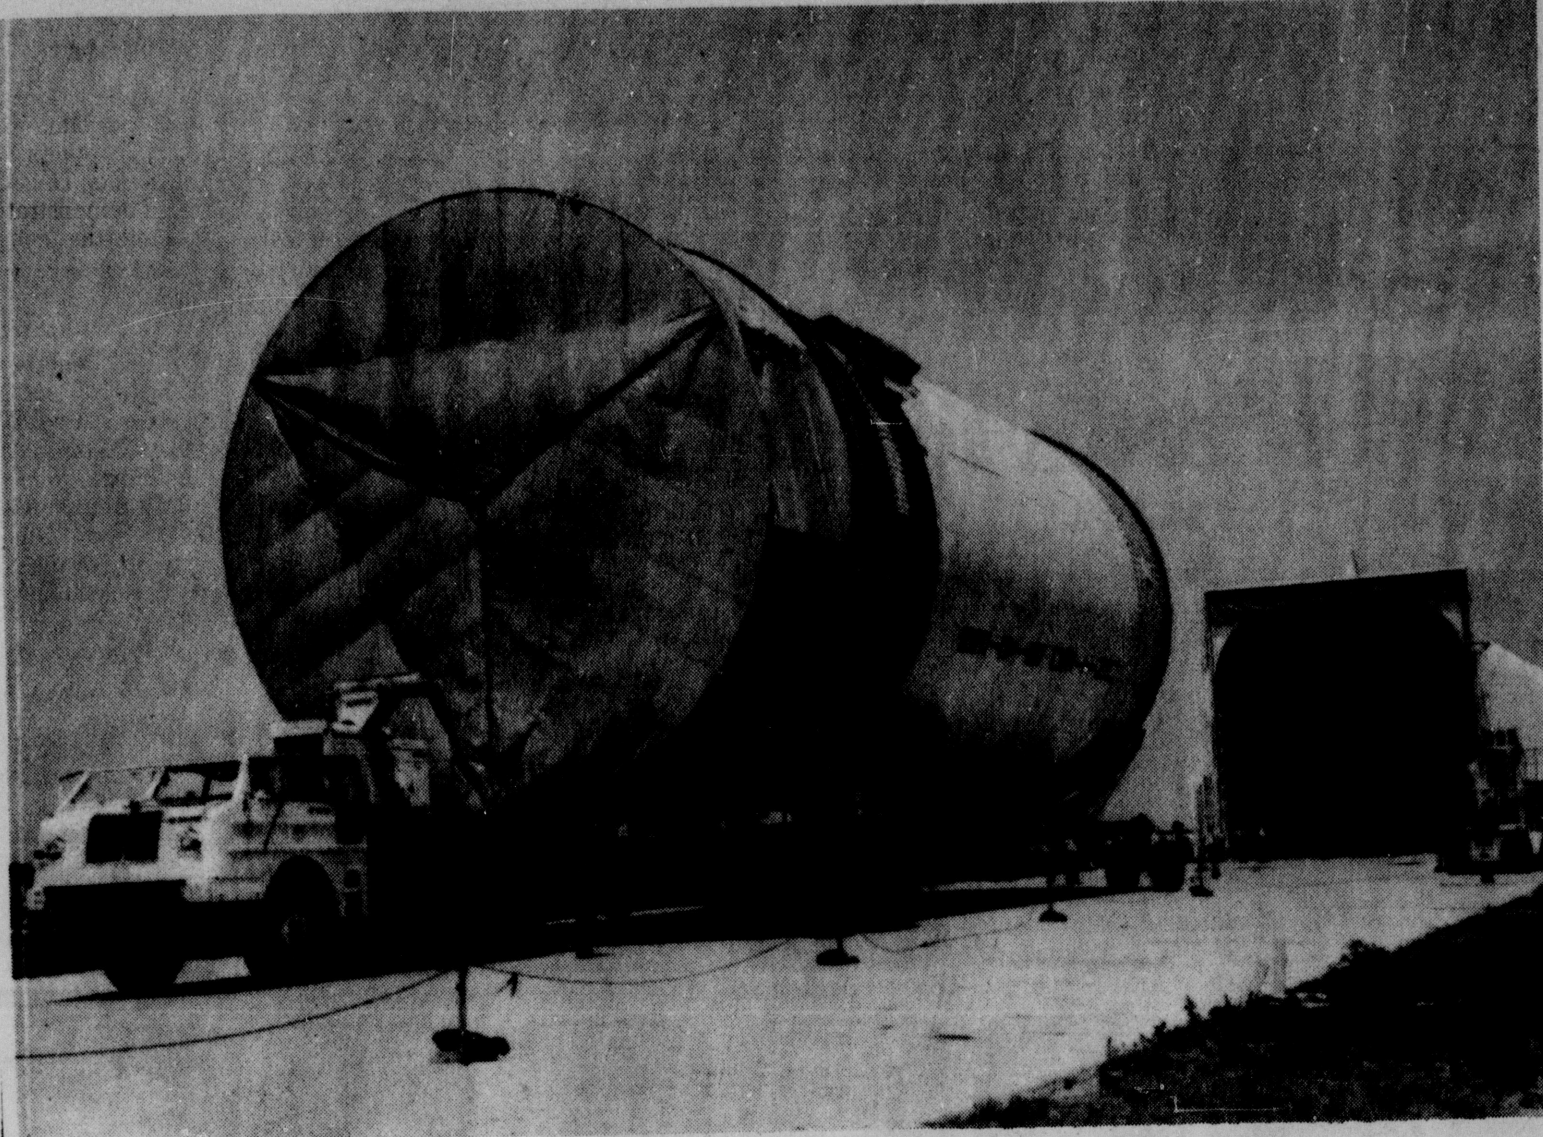

ST. LOUIS (AP) — An open Republican convention in Miami is the announced aim of three Missouri party leaders who said Thursday they will attend the convention, but not as delegates.

That was the message from Reps. Durward Hall and Thomas B. Curtis, the Missouri Republican congressman, and Lawrence K. Roos, supervisor of St. Louis County.

Hall is seeking reelection to his seat in the U.S. House. Curtis is running for nomination to the U.S. Senate and Roos is a candidate for governor.

The Republican leaders stated they believe in an open convention with delegates free to listen, pick and choose a presidential candidate.

Asked if the removal of themselves as possible delegates might be considered favorable to New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller's candidacy, Roos said: "I'm uncommitted. Some people are for Nixon, some for Rockefeller and some are looking for a dark horse."

MARCH AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — The progress being made by former President Dwight D. Eisenhower since suffering a mild heart attack Monday continues to satisfy his doctors.

A late bulletin said "there has been no recurrence of any difficulties. . . Gen. Eisenhower remains at complete bed-rest in the cardiac care unit."

"The general spent another comfortable day," the announcement said.

Eisenhower, 77, was flown by helicopter to the air base hospital from his winter home at Palm Desert, near Palm Springs.

New City Manager For Independence

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (AP) — William R. Moore was sworn in as acting city manager of Independence Thursday night at a special council meeting that lasted only 12 minutes.

Minority councilmen boycotted the session.

Moore, 36, has been the city's urban renewal director. He is the ninth man to be city manager since the charter form of government was adopted in 1962.

He succeeds Keith Wilson Jr., who was fired Wednesday night.

Scandal Almost Forgotten

BY MARCUS ELLASON
Associated Press Writer

TEL AVIV (AP) — Mandy Rice-Davies, one of the leading figures of London's Profumo scandal five years ago, now waters her garden, models, makes movies, runs a discotheque, keeps house and waits impatiently for her baby to be born.

"Boy or girl, it doesn't matter," she says, "as long as it's sound in mind and limb."

The blonde former call girl married an Israeli air steward-turned-businessman named Rafi Shauli—pronounced Sha-ooley—and settled in Israel two years ago. The 22-year-old Londoner has become one of the most popular and best-known celebrities in Tel Aviv's noisy, arty nightlife.

She and her husband run one of the most sophisticated night clubs in town. Mandy's Discotheque sets the pace and dictates the fashion for the humming mile-long strip of bright lights, coffee houses, steak bars and discotheques in central Tel Aviv.

She has cut her cascading hair short and pert. "The pregnancy made it fall out," she giggles.

Mandy hasn't cut herself off from Britain. She flies there twice a year.

"Not that I'm crazy about England, but I visit people and buy clothes. You can't get anything here," she says.

She doesn't talk about the 1963 affair that shook the British government.

John D. Profumo, Britain's war minister, resigned after admitting that he lied to the House of Commons about his affair with Christine Keeler, another call girl who shared her affections with a Soviet Embassy attache. Christine and Mandy had shared an apartment and were the chief witnesses in the trial of Stephen Ward, who committed suicide on being found guilty of keeping a brothel.

Mandy has just finished filming a locally made movie called "Iris," to be premiered in June, in which she plays a seductive English model having an affair with a disillusioned Israeli journalist.

She speaks English in the film, but off the screen chatters away in fairly fluent Hebrew, laughs at her own mistakes and calls herself a shikseh—Yiddish for a non-Jewish girl.

She intends to convert to Judaism before her baby is born.

"Life here used to be a terrible rush," she says, "modeling, filming, traveling, keeping house, running the discotheque."

Her husband bursts into the house, yelling he is "starving to death."

And Mandy disappears into the kitchen.

Alcoholism a Costly Problem to Businessmen

NEW YORK (AP) — Ten years ago industry used to talk about an annual billion-dollar loss because of alcoholism. Now it speaks of a $2-billion to $3-billion-a-year loss from the same ailment.

The figures demonstrate why an organization such as the National Industrial Conference Board, whose research generally attempts to advance business economics and management, is about to begin another study of the subject.

The board's 1958 study, called The Alcoholic Worker, was considered a milestone in industry's recognition of alcoholism as a disease.

"Ten years ago we had to scratch around to find enough companies to make up a rather thin report," said Dr. Stephen Habbe—pronounced hobby—author of the 1958 report and now in charge of the upcoming study to be financed by Kemper Insurance.

"Today we will have no trouble at all. I believe that among the top 100 companies, one-third have substantial programs to identify their problem workers and do something about them."

Another great change of attitude has taken place in the past 10 years. "Ten years ago," said Habbe, "we had very little to say about drinking at the executive level. Now we want to get into that time too."

"Companies are much freer in telling you about the drinking problems at the shop level or at the sales level than they are at the executive level."

It is just this realization, that there are many hundreds of executives among America's five million alcoholics, that now contributes to the higher price tag of drinking. Executive errors generally are much more costly than shop errors.

During the 10 years since the first report many corporations have also become more aware that the losses they once attributed to more conventional illnesses really have an alcoholic base.

This multibillion dollar hangover results in more absenteeism, accidents, employee turnover, lost production, bad decisions and lowered morale. The worst of these, in Habbe's estimate, is absenteeism.

To fire the alcoholic, as is frequently suggested today and which was the method of dealing with the problem in the old days, is now thought of as a very crude method of dealing with the problem.

"We don't blame someone for getting pneumonia and we shouldn't blame someone for getting alcoholism," Habbe stated. But there is a practical reason also: firing the alcoholic may be uneconomical.

To dismiss the alcoholic is to write off a company's investment in him. This could be very costly, more costly than rehabilitation, especially if the replacement turns out to be a victim of the same ailment.

Asked if he thought there was a possibility that the losses due to alcoholism might be reduced, Habbe replied:

"I would think so. It would not be cut to zero, of course, but it can be controlled. The recovery rate in alcoholism is quite good if you approach the illness in a reasonable way. Companies tell us of being able to achieve 50 to 70 per cent success in individual cases."

"I put recovery in quotes, because it is known by specialists in this area that nobody really recovers from alcoholism. They must abstain. They cannot take one additional drink."

Red Wall of Enemy Fire

A SHAU VALLEY, Vietnam (AP) — "The fire was coming up so heavy it sounded like a steady roar. It was a solid red wall beside me."

Capt. Denny Miner of Harrisburg, Pa., tensed as he recalled that initial assault April 19 into this long, green valley near the Laotian border. Miner, a helicopter pilot in the 1st Air Cavalry Division, was in the first wave that entered the Communist stronghold.

American troops had not entered the valley in force for two years. North Vietnamese troops, using Russian-made anti-aircraft weapons, were in bunkers and ready.

Pilots here said 10 choppers were destroyed the first day by the enemy gunners and another 13 were hit so badly they just managed to limp back to base.

"That first day was hell," Miner said. "The fire was coming up so heavy it sounded like another engine running alongside. You know, usually the upcoming rounds make a cracking sound, you can hear, but this was a steady roar. I looked out the side window and it was a solid red wall beside me. All those tracers."

Miner, red-eyed from lack of sleep, paused. "We were so lucky. We didn't take a single hit."

Many of his friends were not so lucky. Machine gun fire from the North Vietnamese in bunkers blasted the tail of a ship directly in front of Miner. He had to swerve sharply to miss the rotar blade that spun by him.

Skytroopers, as the 1st Cavalrymen call themselves, found light ground resistance once they got in position.

But the helicopter took a severe beating, Miner said it was the biggest loss of choppers in one day he could recall.

By the second day however, the anti-aircraft fire had fallen off sharply as wave after wave of Navy, Air Force and Marine jets pounded the positions and were followed by B52 bombers at night. With the exception of a couple of pockets, the A Shau Valley belonged to the 1st Cavalry after four days.

Third Place To S-C Team In Shorthand

A team of three Smith-Cotton High School students captured third place in the advanced shorthand division of the statewide Business Education Contest on the University of Missouri campus in Columbia recently.

Donna Pummill, Carolyn Thomas and Sherry Ulmer, all seniors, successfully took dictation at 110 words per minute for a five-minute time period. Their rating was high enough to rank third among representatives from approximately 50 schools.

The girls are students in the secretarial training class of Mrs. Irma Keyes, who traveled to Columbia with the team.

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — The Rev. Angelo Noble, chaplain at Christian Brothers College, joined students Thursday in a lighthearted demonstration aimed at getting the college swimming pool opened.

Father Noble carried a placard saying, "The Church Must Get Involved," as students bearing signs reading "No Pool, No School" and "Keep it Cool, Fill the Pool" converged on the administration building.

The demonstration ended when the Rev. Luke M. Grady, college president, offered the demonstrators a sprinkling can filled with water.

Skateboard Dumps Mayor in Hospital

CHICKAMAUGA, Ga. (AP) — Mayor Frank Pierce has been hospitalized after an accident in the driveway of his home in which he suffered a broken leg. As the 44-year-old mayor told it, he was zipping along just fine Wednesday on a skateboard when "all of a sudden I landed on the driveway with my legs twisted under me."

'Iceberg Strategy' For Rocky

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller is pinning his hopes of winning the Republican presidential nomination on what one of his close aides calls "the iceberg strategy."

The visible part—his surface approach—will be a series of public-speaking appearances, in which he will offer his solutions to the problems bedeviling the nation and present himself as a "can-do" alternative to front-runner Richard M. Nixon.

The really serious business will be conducted below the surface. Rockefeller and a variety of seasoned Republican professionals allied with him will apply persuasion and pressure to key Republicans controlling state delegations to the GOP national convention.

The second part of the strategy is inextricably linked to the first. The men who control the delegates must be convinced, if they are leaning toward Nixon, that they should switch to Rockefeller or, if they are uncommitted, that Rockefeller has the winning combination.

This is the essence of Rockefeller's campaign effort, as explained by the governor's political advisers.

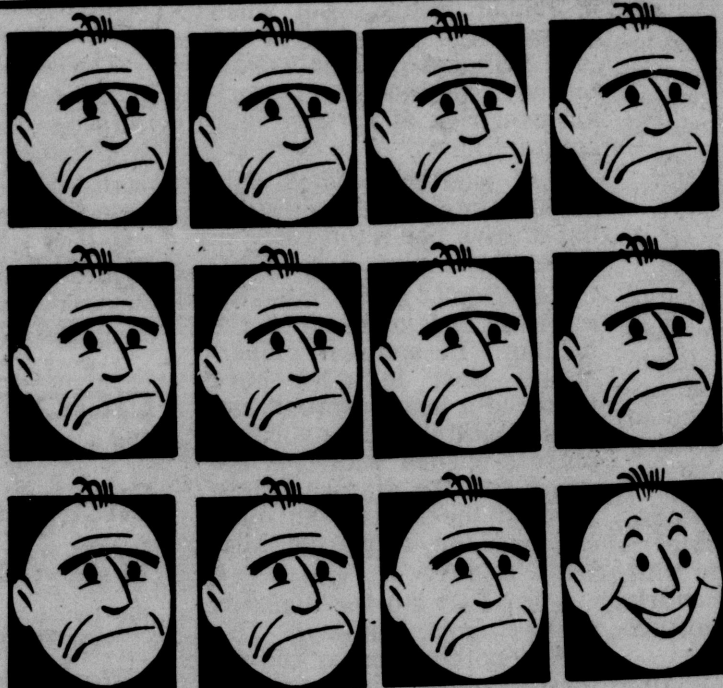

The first part was put into motion immediately, with Rockefeller's speech in Philadelphia Wednesday giving his views on ending the Vietnam war. He followed up Thursday with a speech in Iowa on how the military draft could be conducted.

Meanwhile, the second part already was being implemented. Even before Rockefeller announced his candidacy Tuesday, Rockefeller allies were working on influential Republicans in other states.

U.S. Sen. Thurston B. Morton and former Rep. William E. Miller, the party's vice presidential candidate in 1964, went on a cross-country tour during which they beseeched GOP leaders to give Rockefeller a chance.

Miller and Morton, both former GOP national chairmen, have wide contacts and political friendships in GOP circles across the nation.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: Two years ago my husband's father passed away. My mother-in-law, who had always treated him like dirt, suddenly became the most grief-stricken woman of the 20th Century. She cried, screamed, fainted, fasted, threw herself on everybody—especially her eldest son, my husband.

The biggest mistake of his life was saying to her at the funeral, "Don't worry, Mother, you will never be alone. You can count on us." She took him up on it right there and then and moved into our home the following week.

She couldn't bear to part with her dining room set so mine had to go. Her new freezer and refrigerator, which we could have used, went to her daughter. She had such strong sentimental attachments to her pictures, vases, throw rugs, and other assorted pieces of trash that she had to bring them along. Our once lovely home now looks like a second-hand junk shop.

I could stand it if all she ruined was the looks of our home, but she is ruining my health and my marriage and our relationship with our children. Although this woman has a lovely large room she is never in it. She sits in on every conversation and voices her opinion on matters which do not concern her.

When I call my husband, SHE answers. When I call my children, SHE answers. When I speak to her she doesn't hear me. Please tell me what to do. My mother-in-law is driving me nuts. — SINKING FAST

Dear Sinking: It doesn't sound like a drive to me, lady. It sounds like a putt. And small wonder. Two years is a long time to be imprisoned in your home.

There is only one solution to your problem—find your mother-in-law another place to live. And don't say you can't afford it. It's cheaper than sending you to a mental hospital—or maintaining separate roofs for you and your husband after you've filed for a divorce.

Dear Ann Landers: My 20-year-old daughter is expecting her husband back from Vietnam in May. She has not seen him in over a year. Unfortunately, she is pregnant and the baby is due just about the time her husband is scheduled to come home. He knows nothing of his wife's condition.

For financial reasons Maryanna is getting her maternity care at a military base. I understand from what I have read in the papers that the Red Cross notifies the men overseas when they become fathers. I have begged my daughter to write her husband and tell him of her condition but she refuses to do so. I just hate to have the Red Cross representative tell my son-in-law he is a father when he knows the child can't possibly be his.

Is there any way we can stop the Red Cross from relaying the message? Thank you for your assistance. — TROUBLE IN THE FAMILY

Dear Family: Your daughter ought to discuss this problem with the chaplain of the hospital where she will have the baby. She should explain the circumstances and ask him to intercede on behalf of the young man. It would be a shattering blow if he received the news in that manner.

Industry Working Hard To Help the Housewife

By JOY STILLEY
NEW YORK (AP) — Industry is working hard to make it soft for the nation's housewives.

Take disposable pans, for instance. Take 'em quick, before they overflow the kitchen and go clattering down the hall.

Somehow, they end up in the dishpan instead of the garbage pail and they come out so shiny and sturdy looking that my thrifty nature rebels at discarding such useful objects.

Useful for what, I have yet to discover. But still, I have the storage shelves of the stove stacked with them and the cabinets are so packed with aluminum foil dishes of every size and description that the whole pile comes crashing to the floor every time I open the door.

I'd have a little more room for the disposable pans, except that the drawers and closets in the house are all jammed with those lovely plastic bags clothes come back in from the cleaners. No telling when I'll need 250 or so garment covers, so I carefully fold them up and stuff them into any space not already occupied by little plastic strawberry baskets or slightly used disposable dustcloths.

When plastic straws and plastic toothpicks made their debut my life took a turn for the worse. I know they're meant to be dumped instead of dunked after use, but I'm determined to revitalize them with detergent.

Then along came the neat little coffee cans, complete with a tight cover and beautiful designs that turned them into perfect canisters when empty. I couldn't manage to utilize them all with just flour and sugar and tea, so I started tossing beans and rice and pancake flour and black-eyed peas and hard candy and even oatmeal into them. But they are still multiplying faster than I can think up uses for them.

I never minded throwing out paper plates in the old days, when their rough surface absorbed the juice from the pickles and the grease from the spare ribs. But now that they're as smooth as china and seem almost as durable, I have to look the other way when I consign them to the garbage can.

Well, there's one bright side to the aluminum avalanche. I just baked a frozen pie in its own foil dish and I find that the container was perforated with tiny holes in order to make the crust brown right. I won't mind throwing that one out.

On second thought, perhaps I'd better keep it after all. It would make a dandy sieve.

Hal Boyle is on vacation.

GARDNER, Mass. (AP) — The annual pussy willow contest has ended in a tie. Judges couldn't decide between pussy willows submitted by Laura Robichaud, 4, and John E. Gauvin, 7, so they decided to divide the prize—a $5 gift certificate—equally between them.

Surging Baltimore Orioles Have Plenty To Show Off

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON Associated Press Sports Writer

No-hit Tom Phoebus said he didn't have very much Thursday night but the surging Baltimore Orioles have plenty to show for it today.

In his first start since his no-hitter last Saturday, the stocky right-hander yielded six hits and whipped the New York Yankees 7-3, becoming the first American League pitcher to win four games.

In the only other contests, Minnesota edged Detroit 3-2 on Tony Oliva's 10th-inning single and Boston trimmed California 4-1. Detroit's league lead shrank to a half-game over Baltimore and one game over Minnesota.

In the National League, Houston blanked St. Louis 4-0, Cincinnati whipped San Francisco 6-2 in 11 innings, Chicago nipped Pittsburgh 1-0, New York defeated Philadelphia 3-0 and Los Angeles outlasted Atlanta 2-1 in 17 innings.

Phoebus allowed his first hit with one out in the third inning—a run-scoring single by Horace Clarke. He also served up a two-run homer to Andy Kosco in the eighth.

But he struck out 11 batters, whiffing Mickey Mantle four times, as the Orioles swept their three-game series from the Yankees and won their fourth straight game.

"I felt a little pressure at the start," Phoebus said. "I wasn't relaxed. I wasn't as sharp as the last time."

Andy Etchebarren, Paul Blair and Mark Belanger paced the Baltimore attack with three hits apiece. Etchebarren had a homer and Blair knocked in three runs.

Mexico Whips S-C Tiger Tennis Team

The Smith-Cotton High School boys' tennis team hosted the Mexico squad Wednesday afternoon and was defeated by an 8-1 total team score. Doubles action saw one S-C team victorious as Nick Fowler, junior, and John Gray, freshman, downed Garrett and Safford of Mexico by a 6-4 score.

The girls' team successfully downed Mexico by a score of 8-1. Winning scorers were: Beverly Morris, senior, winning over Offutt with a 12-6 score; Sally Robertson, junior, downing Lankford by a score of 12-5; Sharon Grother, sophomore, defeating White with a 12-1 score; Clydia Smith, sophomore, downing Seigfried with a 12-2 score. Doubles action saw Robertson and Morrid defeating Lankford and Offutt with a score of 12-9; Grother and Hopkins winning over Segfried and Erdel by an 8-0 score; and Smith and sophomore Ruth Cain downing Feummler and Jones with a score of 8-0.

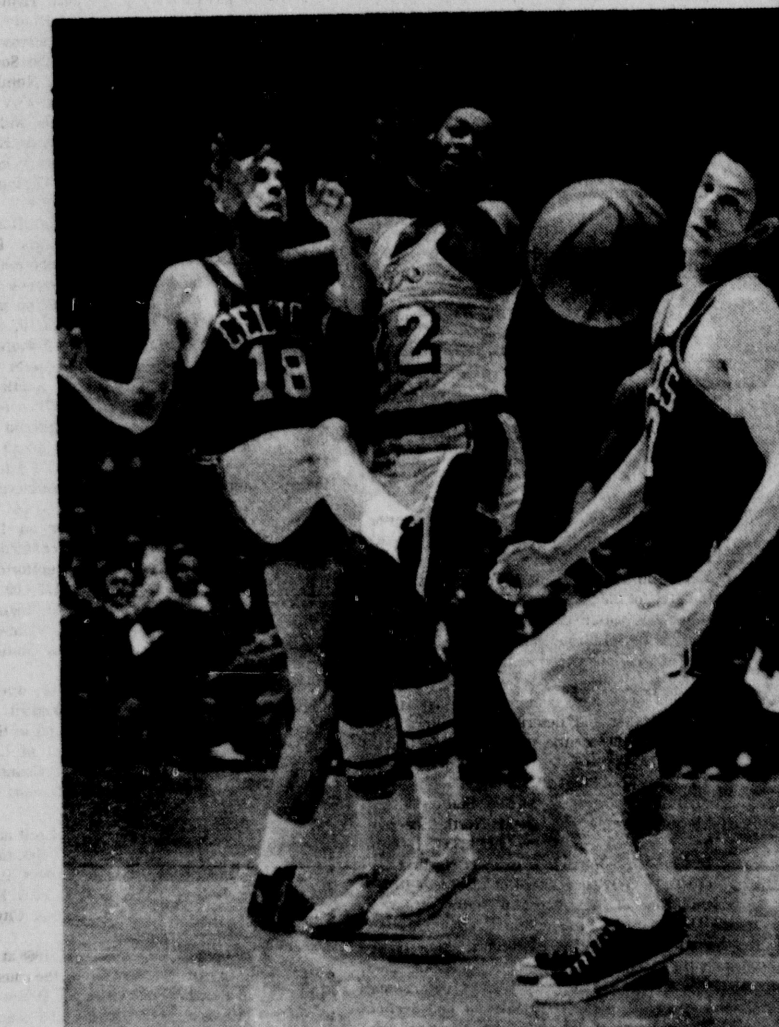

The tennis teams travel to Marshall next Thursday, May 9, and the boys squad will compete in the conference contest May 10 at Hannibal.

Looking more like soccer action, Bailey Howell (18), of the Boston Celtics, appears to be booting the ball past Los Angeles Lakers' Elgin Baylor as Celtics John Havlicek begins to go after the ball during first half action in Los Angeles Thursday night. The Celtics ran up 70 points during the half and took the NBC playoff game 124-109. (UPI)

First Yank On Tennis Firing Line

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Clark Graebner was the first Yank on the firing line today as the United States marched into the 1968 Davis Cup tennis wars, but he shouldered the psychological burden lightly.

"They tell me I'm the man on the spot," said the tall, bespectacled Graebner, at 24 the nation's fourth-ranked amateur. "But nobody had to tell me. I knew it already."

"I still say if we all don't win, there can be no possible excuses."

Graebner's foe in the first singles match of the U.S. team's opening round American zone skirmish here with the British Caribbean team was the best player the visitors possess—Richard Russell, 21.

The second singles on the afternoon program sent the top man on the U.S. team, Arthur Ashe, against Lance Lumsden.

9-Grooved Swing

Written for Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

When does it all fall into place? When do the parts of your golf swing start clicking smoothly so that you know you're at the top of your form?

Well, speaking personally, I can say that even after a couple of months on the tour I'm still way off. My swing is in a general groove. I haven't changed any. I haven't gotten any longer or shorter. You watch me in Cleveland this summer and you watch me in the Crosby next year, and it'll look like the same swing. It hasn't changed in appearance.

But there's a difference in the early going. The muscles are tighter. Even hitting balls you don't get completely loose. It's not mental. You're just not in shape. Maybe your fingers are fatter. It's a matter of co-ordination. You don't feel quite right, and you have to play into it.

There's no specific point at which you can suddenly hit one shot and say, "That was it. Everything fell into place there, and I know it'll be there tomorrow." You don't play badly and hope that work and practice catch up with you.

At this point, you may need

MU Tiger Intrasquad Game Set

COLUMBIA, MO., (Special) — Because of construction work on the Tiger's new football press box, spectators at the final intra-squad game will be admitted only at Memorial Stadium's east side ticket gates this Saturday. Kickoff is at 3 p.m.

Fans attending the game are urged to use the parking areas north and east of the stadium. No gates will be open under the west grandstand.

Meeting head-on in this spring finale, Coach Dan Devine's No. 1 offensive and defensive units watch will send lettermen into battle.

Except for injuries to center Con Rees and tackle Mike Carroll, the offense would have been solidly veteran. Strapping Gene Hertz, held out of combat as a sophomore in '67, will replace Rees. A 255-pound rookie, Larron Jackson, takes over for Carroll.

Defensively, Mark Kuhlman — rangy tackle reserve last year — and new comer Nip Weisenfels, a rugged linebacker, are the only non-lettered starters.

Rival quarterbacks Garnett Phelps and Terry McMillian will be directing talented backfields. McMillian's is the heftier foursome, chiefly because of the presence of James Harrison, 237-pound fullback.

Tiger Golf Squad Defeats Mexico

Scores of the victorious S-C five were as follows: Keith Yount defeated Beshears by a 34-38 margin; George Dugan, senior, downed Glazier with a score of 35-40; Rusty Johnson won over Banhart by a 34-40 score; Bill Woolery, junior, defeated Bailey with a score of 37-41; and Fred Blumh, senior, downed Melahn scoring 37-44.

Four varsity golfers will travel to Excelsior Springs Monday, May 6, to compete in the district contest.

San Antonio's World's Fair is the first international exposition ever held in the southern half of the United States. National Geographic says. The $156 million fair seeks to combine the gaiety of a festival, the vigor and spontaneity of the frontier and the sophisticated adventure of Space Age technology.

Clever Ways to Make Headboards for Beds

By POLLY CRAMER

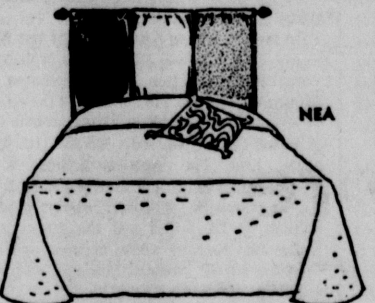

DEAR GIRLS—I was overwhelmed with the number of ingenious ways our readers have used for making headboards for Hollywood beds. You are all so clever and how I wished for space to include many, many more than I can. Thanks to all of you for sharing your ideas.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—I have two suggestions for D.A.S. in connection with making a headboard for her Hollywood bed. An inexpensive plywood door can be painted to complement the room's decor, after being cut to fit across the width of the bed. Fasten to the wall as a fake headboard. Such a door could be padded and covered with fabric to match the bedspread. These doors come in various widths and any part left over could be used for making a table top.

We also used big wooden drapery poles, complete with decorator knobs, painted them and fastened to the frame of our twin beds to make most attractive bed posts.—NANCY

DEAR POLLY—For a bed headboard with a decorator touch, take a large, round brass- or wood-tone drapery rod and hang this above the bed just as you would on a window. Use round brass or wood curtain rings and hang "shorty" curtains that match the bedspread back of the bed.—ELOISE

DEAR POLLY—My granddaughter wanted a headboard to her bed so we bought a brass curtain rod and hung it about 21 inches above the bed. We made three burlap pillowcases with the material cut 12x18 inches and with a loop on each end for hanging. One was red, one blue and one was white. They were filled with foam pads, 10x16 inches, and slipped on the rod. Any colors could be used for making such a headboard.—BEULAH

DEAR POLLY—I had the same problem as D.A.S. and had to do the job myself as my husband was overseas. I took a 2x4-inch board, cut it in half to make it 2x2 and cut to the desired height. I used the remainder of the board to place on the top and another, about the height of the bed spring, I securely nailed to this frame a piece of perforated wallboard. This was bolted to the bed frame, leaving about 1/4-inch between it and the floor to make for easier moving.

I cut two pieces of foam rubber mattress topping the proper size as I wanted it soft and secured it to the wooden frame. I covered this with Orlon pile fabric (fake fur would be good, too). To complete the job I covered buttons with the same material and fastened them through the holes in the board, using old buttons on the back to hold them. This gave a tufted effect that is attractive. This was inexpensive and is easy to dust with the vacuum upholstery nozzle.—PEGGY

DEAR POLLY—D.A.S. could paper he area back of her bed and put a border around it to simulate a headboard. Also she could attach four wood poles across, fastened to the wall or the bed with equal distances between. Paint poles the desired color and then use silk braid with a tassle edge to go across from pole to pole, dropping in graceful curves like scallops. Framed pictures, of the same size, might be hung to form a rectangle the size of a headboard. If one uses plywood, padded with foam, the covering fabric might be stapled on.—MRS. D.

Settle Phone Strike

WASHINGTON (AP) — Telephone strikers won three-year wage and fringe benefit increases totaling nearly 20 per cent Thursday in 1968's fattest labor contract agreement thus far. It will affect some 600,000 workers across the nation.

The AFL-CIO Communications Workers estimated the settlement will cost the Bell System more than $2 billion and top company official said it will mean higher bills for many of the nation's 50 million telephone subscribers.

Some 200,000 strikers will vote in the next few days on whether to end their 15-day-old nationwide walkout and accept the agreement, which would set a pattern for most of the 400,000 other Bell System workers whose contracts expire later.

"The new Bell System pattern agreements are big—in every sense," said the union president, Joseph A. Beirne.

The increased costs the settlements impose will inevitably have some effect on the rates our customers pay for services," said Ben S. Gilmer, president of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., parent firm of the Bell System.

The wage and fringe package increases average 6.5 per cent a year, compared with last year's 5.6 per cent for all major industry contract settlements.

However, larger wage increases are concentrated in the first year of the telephone contracts.

"These wage increases represent by far the largest pay package ever bargained in Communications Workers history with the Bell System," Beirne said.

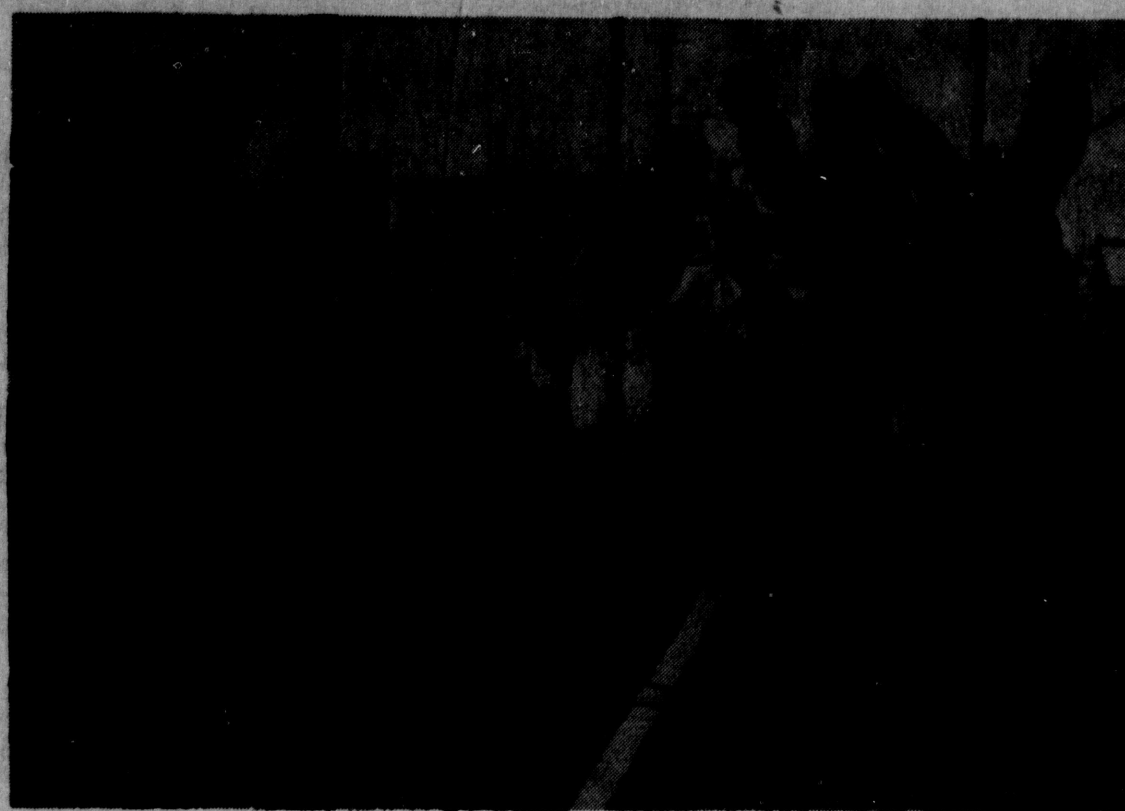

Improved vacations, holidays and holiday pay, overtime pay, pensions, wage progression scales, medical and life insurance are also included.

"To get all of this it took a strike," Beirne said of the first nationwide telephone walkout in 21 years.

Top pay for telephone installers will rise $34 a week by the third year of the contract, for top plant craftsmen $24 and for switchboard operators and clerks $16, the union said.

Average pay before the agreement was about $154 a week for plant craftsmen and installers, $83 for switchboard operators and $103 for clerical employees.

However, there are a wide range of geographical pay differentials in the Bell System. Top pay for plant craftsmen before the strike ranged from a high of $167.50 a week in New York to a low of $128 in Southwestern Bell Telephone Co.

March Begins

Memphis—Rev. Ralph Abernathy, president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference and director of the "poor people's" march on Washington, drives a mule-drawn farm wagon to start the march Thursday. (UPI)

Poor People's March Off To Slow, Creaking Start

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — The late Dr. Martin Luther King's Poor People's March on Washington got off to a slow, creaking start Thursday—starting at the point where a sniper killed him April 4.

"The moment has come," the Rev. Ralph Abernathy told the crowd gathered for the memorial service. "The days of weeping are ended. The days of march have begun."

Led by a battered old wagon hauled by two lop-eared mules, the some 400 who joined the symbolic 2½-mile march through a slum area walked eight abreast under a hot sun.

Lunches, cold drinks and portable restrooms awaited them at the line of buses chartered to carry many of them on to Marks—70 miles to the south in Mississippi's flat, freshly green Delta.

Southern Christian Leadership Conference spokesmen said those who make the trip will camp in Marks for two days—fanning out to recruit new marchers from Negroes in the area.

Dr. King's widow, a trim dignified figure in mourning black, spoke at the somber memorial service that preceded the march. The rolling cadence of her voice was oddly reminiscent of her husband's renowned oratorical style.

"On this spot where my husband gave his life for love and service to humanity, I pledge my loyalty and devotion to the work which he so nobly began," she said.

Mrs. King stood on the balcony of the Lorraine Motel, an angular, modernistic structure, looking down on the intent crowd—and on across the street, through the green screen of wild mulberry trees, to the window where the sniper lay in wait to kill her husband.

About 1,000 Negroes gathered in the motel parking lot for the memorial ceremony. A few whites were among them. Clusters of police were scattered around the area.

Two officers, armed with rifles, stood looking out the window where the sniper had stood before firing the shot that, in addition to killing Dr. King, triggered violent reaction in several cities that claimed other lives.

Abernathy, wearing blue denim instead of sober preacher's garb, told the crowd the Poor People's March will not exclude any color of people.

"We're not going to have white power or black power," he cried. "We're going to have poor power."

Dr. King envisioned the Poor People's Campaign and March on Washington to point up the plight of the nation's needy and underprivileged.

Mrs. Callis Is Chairman Of Cancer Crusade

William P. McCune, president of the Pettis County Cancer Society, has announced the appointment of Mrs. James Callis, Route 2, Sedalia, as the 1968 Cancer Crusade chairman for Pettis County.

The drive is expected to be the largest ever undertaken against the second most fatal disease in the United States. The rural drive is already under way under the direction of McCune, and Mrs. Callis is recruiting a task force of volunteers for special duty during the house-to-house phase of the annual crusade for Sedalia.

"Tell your neighbor!" will emphasize personal responsibility in the prevention and control of cancer, McCune said. "Half of all who develop cancer could be saved through earlier detection and prompt treatment, yet only one in three is actually saved," McCune said.

A new leaflet, entitled "Know Cancer's Warning Signals" will be distributed during the Cancer Control Month Crusade.

Fighting Is Heaviest Since Tet Offensive

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. and South Vietnamese troops slugged it out Thursday night with strong North Vietnamese forces in the northeast corner of South Vietnam in the heaviest fighting since the enemy's Tet offensive in February.

Casualty reports indicated American and South Vietnamese forces were killing 12 enemy soldiers for every allied soldier killed in the four days of bitter fighting around Dong Ha and Hue.

The allies said enemy casualties since Monday were 1,139 and U.S. and South Vietnamese reported 93 of their men killed and 449 wounded.

Savage fighting was reported Thursday just north of the U.S. Marine base at Dong Ha, 11 miles south of the demilitarized zone between the Vietnams. A North Vietnamese counterattack pushed back Marines assaulting a bunker complex two miles northeast of the sprawling American base.

U.S. headquarters said the advancing Marine column came under heavy artillery and mortar fire.

South Vietnamese troops were reported heavily engaged 2½ miles north of Dong Ha. AP correspondent Lewis M. Simons said soldiers of the 1st South Vietnamese Division ran into enemy forces dug in on both sides of Route 1, Vietnam's major north-south highway.

Simons said the South Vietnamese had been in "almost steady contact" with the enemy since Monday and the fight was continuing late Thursday night.

The sustained fighting along the DMZ indicated the North Vietnamese had moved in troops to threaten the Dong Ha base, headquarters of the 3rd Marine Division and the anchor for allied outposts along the eastern flank of the demilitarized zone.

There were no fresh reports on the fighting around Hue, the old imperial capital 40 miles southeast of Dong Ha, where allied forces had been battling enemy units for three successive days.

The fighting around Dong Ha overshadowed the allied drive into the A Shau Valley southwest of Hue. Marine Lt. Gen. Robert E. Cushman, commander of U.S. forces in the northern provinces, said the 15,000-man allied force operating in the valley had cut one of the enemy's main supply and infiltration routes from North Vietnam, but "there are still a lot of nooks and crannies we have not looked into."

U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division troops pushed into one pocket of the valley called the Punchbowl against scattered enemy resistance. They uncovered big caches of Communist arms and supplies.

Approval Is Received For Expenditures of $24,000

The State Fair Community College has received approval from the State Department of Education to purchase about $24,000 worth in instructional supplies and equipment for a Secretarial Science program.

Fred Davis, college president, said the college will be repaid 50 per cent of the total cost from funds made available through the provisions of various federal vocational act.

The program is to begin this fall, when the college opens for its first term. Actually, two parts of the program will be initiated. One part is a one-year certificate program in Secretarial Science. This program is directed to high school graduates who have had some experience in business and office work but who feel they need more experience before they enter the career field. Emphasis on this part of the program will be skill and speed in the various operations of a modern office.

The other program to be offered is a two-year course in Secretarial Science, leading to an Associate of Arts degree in this field. The first of this program will be initiated this year, along with the one-year program.

Equipment to be purchased with the $24,000 authorization will include 25 V-shaped desks 40 chairs, 20 IBM electric typewriters, three IBM executive typewriters, dictaphones, transcribing machines and other related equipment, an adding machine, photo copying machine, tabulator and stands for the equipment.

High school students who are interested in enrolling in the programs should contact the State Fair Community College, Sedalia, Mo.

Life Underwriters Group Votes for Scholarship

The Central Missouri Association of Life Underwriters today became the first organization voting to grant a scholarship for some deserving student to attend the State Fair Community College in Sedalia.

At an association meeting Wednesday, the grant of a one-year scholarship was approved. Details will be worked out and announced later.

Roy Maddux, association president, said a committee will be appointed from members of the four-county association to set up the specifications for the scholarship.

Fred Davis, college president, said that other organizations have indicated they will offer similar scholarships, but again details have not been worked out and official approval has not yet been given.

Israeli Military Might On Display

JERUSALEM (AP) — The might of Zion-Soviet-made arms seized from the Arabs and planes and guns bought in the United States and France—sped across captured Jerusalem Thursday in an Israeli celebration of 20 years of statehood that defied the United Nations and the Arab world.

Under a burning sun, 4,500 troops and 450 vehicles crunched along a five-mile parade route that led through an Arab quarter held by Jordan until the Middle East war last June and into a traditionally Jewish area of the once divided city.

Some 250,000 Israelis and visitors cheered as 300 planes screamed overhead. American-built Skyhawk fighter-bombers led a formation that included a Soviet MIG21, delivered to Israel by an Iraqi defector. French Magister jets looped through the skies, leaving blue and white vapor trails that formed a Star of David.

The parade, denounced last week by the United Nations Security Council as a blow to Middle East peace, caused angry demonstrations in Lebanon and Syria. But Jerusalem's Arabs were quiet and threat of terrorism by the Al Fatah guerrilla organization did not materialize.

For 75 minutes, men and women soldiers and armament sped past a reviewing stand where Prime Minister Levi Eshkol, President Zalman Shazar and Defense Minister Moshe Dayan received salutes.

Rebellious Students Win New Concessions

NEW YORK (AP) — Columbia University offered new concessions to its campus rebels Thursday, in an effort to end the 10-day battle of Morningside Heights and reopen classrooms for its 25,381 students.

Classes at Columbia have been suspended for a week, with no indication they can be resumed before next week at the earliest.

Nearly all city police were withdrawn during the day from the Ivy League campus in up-town Manhattan's Morningside Heights. They were summoned in force earlier in the week to clear five buildings occupied by student demonstrators. There were 720 arrests in the ensuing melee.

In addition, Columbia's Board of Trustees agreed to consult with community leaders on the fate of a controversial $11.5-million gymnasium being constructed in Morningside Park, which separates the university from Harlem.

The trustees also offered to consider demands for a greater student-faculty voice in the policies of the 214-year-old school, one of the nation's oldest and most esteemed.

Court Not Obligated To Pay

Attorney General Norman H. Anderson said a county is not obligated to pay the medical bills of an indigent defendant who is injured during the commission of a crime.

Anderson issued the opinion in response to inquiry by Richard J. Blanck, Prosecuting Attorney of Cooper County.

Anderson said that the county court does have authority to make payment of hospital bills of poor defendants but the payment cannot be taxed as costs in the criminal case.

He said Missouri law gives the county court discretionary authority to pay medical bills of an indigent defendant. He emphasized, however, that these payments cannot be taxed as costs in the criminal action against that defendant.

Heart Transplant Patient Is 'Fair'

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — Joseph Rizzor, a stocky 40-year-old Salinas, Calif., carpenter, received a new heart Thursday. Stanford University Medical Center said his condition was "fair" after 4½ hours of surgery.

Rizzor is the eighth person in the world to receive a human heart transplant. His was the second at Stanford where Dr. Norman E. Shumway and a team of heart specialists performed both operations.

The donor of Rizzor's new heart was a 43-year-old man who died of brain damage which doctors said was irreversible. The donor's family asked that his name not be revealed.

There was no immediate word on how the donor suffered the brain damage.

Shumway said that Rizzor was getting artificial respiration after the surgery because of a lung condition.

The family physician of the dark haired carpenter had referred him to Stanford in March so that the Shumway team could consider replacing his diseased heart. He had suffered a serious heart ailment for seven years. "The next 10½ hours are critical," hospital physicians said after the transplant.

A spokesman added, however, that unless a drastic change occurs, the next report on Rizzor's condition would be at 10:30 a.m. PDT Friday.

Rizzor's wife Eileen was interviewed before the transplant surgery that lasted from 7:30 a.m. until noon.

"It never entered my mind that Joe would be selected for a heart transplant," Mrs. Rizzor said.

"I remember his comment how 'I wish that was me' following the first heart transplant by Dr. (Christian) Barnard in South Africa."

"At first I was shocked by the idea, but time and the knowledge of how desperately my husband wanted to undergo the operation has made me realize that this may be his only chance to live."

A Cape Town, South Africa, dentist, Phillip Blaiberg, is the first long-term survivor of such a transplant. He has been discharged from the hospital and is reported doing well at home. His operation was Jan. 2.

Catching Up

Workmen are about one week behind schedule, but a spokesman for the J. R. Seal Construction Co., Jefferson City, said the crews should catch up and have the new grandstand ready for use by State Fair time. Above, workmen pour one of the 35, to 40 buckets of concrete needed to fill this giant support form. After the concrete sets, giant, high-quality steel tension cables running inside of the entire length of the support are tightened, making the unit a post-stressed support. The same principle is used throughout the structure. (Democrat-Capital Photo)

No Humor in Hippierville

The remarkable thing about the hippie phenomenon, the psychedelic movement, the whole youth revolution bit, is the almost total absence of the element of humor.

Anybody who takes himself and his beliefs too deadly seriously all the time, who can't laugh at the mirror occasionally, who is unable to appreciate the essential ridiculousness of the human condition, is just asking for life to give him a hard time.

If he affects beads, beard and sandals as well, he is fair game for the fun-pokers.

The flower children are really blooming bores.

They have discovered God within themselves, they announce with egocentric condescension, but to an outside observer it looks more like a case of mistaken identity caused by "acid" indigestion.

LOVE is what the world needs, they preach joylessly while making themselves as unlovely and unlovable as possible.

Something called Process '67, a conference sponsored by the University Christian Movement, drew 3,000 youthful delegates to Cleveland to discuss what's wrong with the world and how to make it right.

one of the delegates. He looked as if he carried the weight of the entire world on his young shoulders — just below his hair, which hung down to the middle of his eyes.

Also noted in Cleveland was part of a conversation between a hippie couple walking down the street, dressed in the usual scroungy hippie uniform, one of them carrying an expensive-looking piece of luggage:

"I wonder what was wrong with that policeman—stopping us and asking us where we got this suitcase."

There is humor in all these things. And like all true humor, it is but one step this side of tears.

Sure, the tuned-in people, the student powerists, the Movement infrastructure may one day inherit the earth and make everything that's wrong with it right.

But in their intense, single-minded desire to reform society and make us all happy, in their intolerance of the foibles and mistakes of their elders, some of these youths are all too reminiscent of other dedicated humorless world-savers. History remembers them as having brought much sorrow to mankind.

They really ought to learn to laugh a little.

Israel's Turbulent Anniversary

—North Korean Raids—

On Feb. 22 Jack Anderson, writing from Seoul, reported that North Korea was raiding across the 38th parallel. This warning was repeated to President Johnson by President Park of South Korea in Honolulu on April 17. On April 23 the United States issued an official warning to North Korea against its "wanton and provocative attacks" across the Korean truce line.

By DREW PEARSON AND JACK ANDERSON
WASHINGTON — Twenty years ago this week a small band of Jewish refugees formed a country about the size of Massachusetts and fought a war of independence against the Arab world. No one thought they would ever survive. But they moved so fast they almost captured Col. Gamel Abdul Nasser, and the "Tel Aviv" stamp which King Farouk had printed in advance became the laughing stock of the Near East, as did the King himself. He was dethroned.

Despite two additional wars with the Arabs, Israel still stands.

Its anniversary May 2 finds its territory increased, but its problems more complicated. Soviet Russia has poured fresh arms into Egypt and Syria; France has cancelled its previous arms contract and is now selling arms to Iraq, not Israel. And 2,000 Russian instructors have been sent to train Egyptian troops in flying modern MIGs and operating Russian tanks.

Simultaneously part of the Russian fleet has moved from the Black Sea into the Mediterranean, while Russian influence is moving into the vacuum left by the British withdrawal from the Near East. The Soviet is angling for rights to use both the old British base at Aden at the entrance of the Red Sea and the once great British naval base at Malta. It has given a foreign aid grant to the Shah of Iran, hitherto a 100 per cent ally of the United States; has encouraged pilgrimages to Moscow by Turkish leaders; and for a time sent arms to the trouble making island of Cyprus.

The only thing that prevents Russian expansion from joining forces in the Gulf of Persia and the Gulf of Aden with Russian forces in the Mediterranean is the Israeli Army which sits astride the Suez Canal. If that army were to withdraw, the first ships to pass through the canal would be the Soviet fleet.

—Goldberg vs. Rostow—

For some time there's been a backstage debate in the State Department and the White House as to how far the United States can go in supporting Israel.

President Johnson, when Senate majority leader, was one of the chief supports of Israel. But, as President, Johnson has been urged to go slow. His No. 1 adviser, Walt Rostow, born of Jewish parents but who has left the Jewish faith, presented a confidential paper to the President in March pointing out that the United States had no treaty or other commitment to support Israel.

The President was disturbed. He is a stickler for living up to treaties and other commitments. The SEATO pact is one reason he has stuck to the mess he inherited in South Vietnam. He has wanted to support Israel, and has been trying to find some way to get around the roadblock raised by Rostow.

Significantly, Arthur Goldberg, who has supported Israel as a private citizen ever since it became a state, has disagreed with Rostow on almost everything, ranging from the Near East to Southeast Asia. He resigned on the eve of Israel's 20th anniversary, through Israel was not the immediate reason of his resignation.

Goldberg had performed a difficult, courageous job of representing the United States at the U.N. even when he disagreed and even when the thorny Near East question was up for debate. He scrupulously carried out the State Department's directives, maintained good personal relations with Arab diplomats, and Dorothy Goldberg danced with the Egyptian Ambassador just as cordially as she did with any other.

Goldberg had spent more than twenty years working for his government, first during World War II when he organized labor espionage behind Nazi lines, then as Secretary of Labor, then Associate Justice of the Supreme Court, finally as Ambassador to the U.N. He served Johnson just as loyally as he served John F. Kennedy, and his only real difference was over peace in Vietnam. He was one who believed Warsaw could be a site for truce talks.

—Peace Is Possible—

The solution for the Arab-Israeli problem in the eyes of both Presidents Johnson and Harry Truman, who originally recognized Israel, is to give the Arabs the benefits of Israeli science, education and industry, while giving the Jews the benefits of Arab water and agriculture.

One way to bring this about would be to call an off-the-record meeting of representatives of the Arab states friendly to the United States to discuss the problem of Soviet penetration. Men such as King Faisal of Saudi Arabia, King Hassan of Morocco, King Hussein of Jordan, King Idris of Libya, President Helou of Lebanon, President Bourguiba of Tunisia, and the Amir of Kuwait, Sheikh Sabah Al-Salim Al-Sabah are just as anxious to stop Communist penetration of the Near East as the United States.

But with the United States bogged down in Southeast Asia, and the U.S. Sixth Fleet now about one-third the size of Russian naval forces in the Black Sea, Near East leaders are worried. This is why the Shah of Iran has taken a trip to Moscow. His foreign aid from the United States has been curtailed, while Soviet aid has been forthcoming for the first time in history. This is also why Turkish leaders, after a century-old rivalry with Russia, have begun to warm up to Moscow.

When peace talks begin with North Vietnam, however, the focus of American attention can be adjusted. Israeli leaders say privately they are ready to cooperate with reasonable Arab leaders and are willing to surrender part of the territory won in the June six-day war in return for recognition and cooperation.

One of President Johnson's greatest ambitions is to launch peace talks for the Near East before he leaves the White House.

Korea Is Guide for U.S. On Viet Peace Talk Site

By BRUCE BIOSSAT
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA) — After our experience in negotiating with the Korea and Chinese Communists at Kaesong in 1951, it has to be a puzzle why President Johnson ever said he would talk with the Vietnamese Reds anywhere, any time.

Of course, he felt himself under pressure from critics of the war to prove his willingness to talk peace. But negotiations with Communists are inherently difficult enough without adding to the handicap by holding them on Red-controlled soil.

Lately there have appeared in print some rather superficial attempts to minimize these difficulties. It is being said that "myths" have distorted the picture of the Korean talks. The truth is, without resort to myth, that they were incredibly tortuous.

In July of 1951, no protracted argument developed over choice of a truce-talk site. Though we recognized certain hazards, we quickly accepted the Red proposal to meet at Kaesong, on the 38th parallel in the Chinese-controlled military zone.

Thereafter we had nothing but Communist-manufactured trouble.

The Reds refused to establish a neutral zone around Kaesong. They tried to get the United Nations delegation to stay each night at the site to enhance the picture they sought to give the world of a U.N. force suing for peace terms from a victorious Red army. They controlled all physical arrangements at the site for the same purpose.

Legions of armed guards, brandishing sub-machine guns, followed U.N. delegates every step they took around Kaesong. Communist newsmen and photographers devoured the scene, seeking maximum propaganda effect from a setting which made us seem like prisoners.

Our chief negotiator, Admiral C. Turner Joy, says in his book on the talks that he was "directly threatened" by a Red guard with a heavy weapon. Once when he dispatched a messenger to Gen. Ridgway, the U.N. commander, the man was turned back by force.

After some days of this, we bridled. We refused to meet further until Western newsmen and photographers, barred up to that time, were admitted to the Kaesong area. The Reds yielded, and even withdrew armed personnel from the immediate talk site.

But Peking and Pyongyang were not finished with trying. On Aug. 4, nearly a month after talks had begun, the entire U.N. delegation had its path temporarily blocked by heavily armed Chinese as it proceeded to the tea house where the two sides met.

The gesture was a direct violation of an earlier agreement. Ridgway broke off talks. The Reds waited five days before humbling themselves and returning to the tea house. The pressure of our continuing general military effort brought them back.

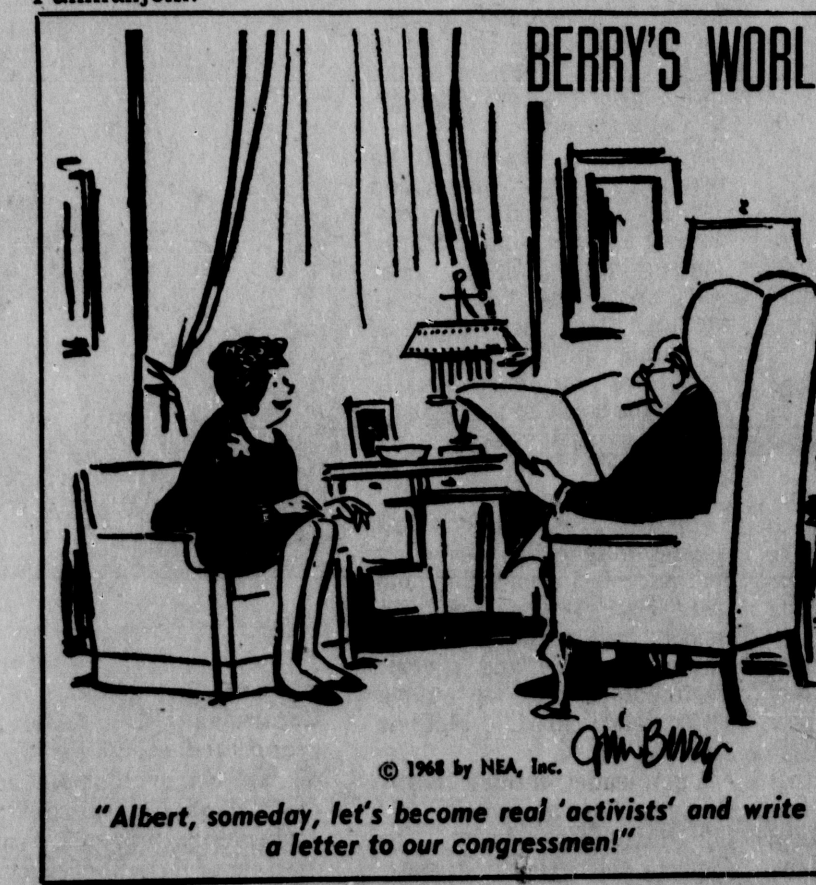

After that, the Reds gave up trying to dominate the truce scene and took a new tack—portraying us as guilty of brutal military acts around Kaesong to sabotage the talks ourselves.

First they charged that U.N. troops attacked a Chinese "security patrol" in the neutral zone. Evidence indicated their own partisans, out of uniform, had deliberately killed a Red leader.

At midnight, Aug. 22, U.N. delegates were summoned to Kaesong to hear charges and see "evidence" that our aircraft had intentionally bombed the site in an attempt to wipe out the Red delegation.

Offered in proof as "part of a napalm bomb" was an oily piece of twisted metal which we knew to be part of a downed aircraft, and a small, unexploded rocket of a kind we had not used for a year. There was no sign of napalm jelly, of explosion, injury or damage.

When we scorned the "evidence," Chinese leaders then and there broke off talks. The Reds, by their choice, resumed general fighting. For 63 days they tried to get us back to Kaesong, but we never returned. Beaten again in the field, they agreed thereafter to negotiate at a more truly neutral site—Panmunjom.

Here is a hand from the early '30s which Fred Karpin calls as beautiful a falsecard as he has ever seen.

Fred does not mention the declarer's name, but it was the late Louis Watson. We know the hand well. At least one of us does. Oswald Jacoby sat North and as usual had bid a trifle too much.

Louis was a great player who always gave the impression of general sleepiness at the table.

West opened the king of spades and continued with the ace. Louis dropped his jack of spades on that second spade lead. He did it so carelessly that West did not pause to ask himself, "What is Louis up to?"

If declarer had done so he would have deliberately led his deuce of spades. East would have ruffed that and cashed his ace of clubs to set the contract, but West just continued with the 10 of spades. East was convinced that Louis was going to ruff that third spade and East dropped his three of clubs.

West had to lead again and selected a diamond. Louis was in with the king and at first glance it appears that Louis would still have to lose a trick.

A second glance shows that he did not have to. Louis simply ran off all his trumps and discarded four clubs from dummy. This left dummy with the ace-queen-seven of diamonds while Louis held the king-eight of clubs and nine of diamonds.

East couldn't keep the ace of clubs and three diamonds so a squeeze had materialized and the false-card was properly rewarded.

Haphazard System Of Nominations

By JOHN BECKLER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — It would be hard to design a more haphazard, inefficient system than that by which the United States nominates its presidential candidates. It would also be hard to find one better suited to the national temper in this election year.

At a time of national uncertainty, a hovering between war and peace, a groping for answers to racial, urban and economic problems, the system is keeping the political situation fluid.

It permits Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York to become a full-fledged candidate for the Republican nomination and score at least a psychologically important victory in Massachusetts little more than a month after he declared himself out of the race.

It permits Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey to go from noncandidate to strong contender in the Democratic contest without having faced a rival in a single primary.

It permits Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., to turn a quixotic one-man crusade into a full-fledged campaign; and Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., to avoid casting the first stone and then come into the fray swinging.

Ever since George Washington became unavailable for another presidential term the nation has experimented with a variety of methods for nominating presidential candidates.

Having settled in 1832 on the national party convention as the best way to make the final choice, it has been tinkering ever since with the method of choosing delegates to the conventions and giving the voters a large role in the nominating process.

The reform movement in the early 20th Century that replaced boss-dominated state nominating conventions with direct primaries appeared for a time to be leading toward a universal system — perhaps even the direct national primary which Woodrow Wilson, among others, advocated. By 1916, 24 states were holding presidential primaries, but that was the highwater mark. In 1964 only 16 states let the voters help pick the candidates. This year it's down to 13.

Most states still use conventions, some use both conventions and primaries. It is hard to find even two states that follow identical procedures. In addition, the states act over a time span beginning in March and extending right up to the national conventions.

This, then, is the American way of political life for a candidate and it is bound to impose its peculiar logic on him.

Certainly, it was the opportunity offered by the New Hampshire and Wisconsin primaries to get at least a tentative reading on voter attitudes toward the Vietnam war and President Johnson that led McCarthy to act.

McCarthy's success brought in Kennedy and forced Johnson to declare a hand he may well have preferred to conceal for a while. And the fact that not enough states hold presidential primaries to give any candidate a lock on the nomination let Humphrey and Rockefeller make their belated moves.

Like a Rube Goldberg contraption, it works. But you can be sure the tinkering is not over.

Democrat Pickups

The man certainly didn't believe in ghosts or he wouldn't have been taking a short cut through a cemetery on a dark night, but a little more than halfway through something white rose up and fluttered a bit.

It couldn't be a ghost, of course. There isn't any such thing as ghosts, he told himself, as the white object quieted down, but a few steps farther, it raised up again to its full big size and the sweat on this very cold night, popped out on the man.

There was no use to turn around and run in the other direction. If it was a ghost it would chase him, so he bravely walked on toward the gate, that seemed miles away, and closer and closer to the ghost.

As if just teasing him, it would raise up and flutter around, then it would settle down again. Finally he reached the gate which was only a short distance from the ghost. With his heart in his mouth he dared to take a look as he prepared to dart through.

The thing raised up and fluttered again, and this time it looked a little different, it was flat and he got a good look at it. It wasn't a ghost after all, it was a wind-blown huge piece of paper that had been on some flowers at a recent funeral.

Except for the fact that it didn't say "Boo!" to him, it might as well have been a ghost. He was just as scared as if it had been. When he arrived home he dropped down in a chair, looking about as white as the ghost, and sweating like it was a hundred in the shade.

"What on earth is the matter?" asked his wife. "I was just scared by a ghost" he told her which sounded pretty silly until he got his breath enough to explain what had happened. H. L.

Pettis county and Sedalia can well hold up their chins and look Uncle Sam in the face and say, "We Did It," because C. L. Hanley, chairman of the County Second War Bond drive, announced that the quota of $488,000 was more than met. Saturday's report was $510,442 and is expecting to reach $540,000 when other township chairmen are heard from.

FORTY YEARS AGO

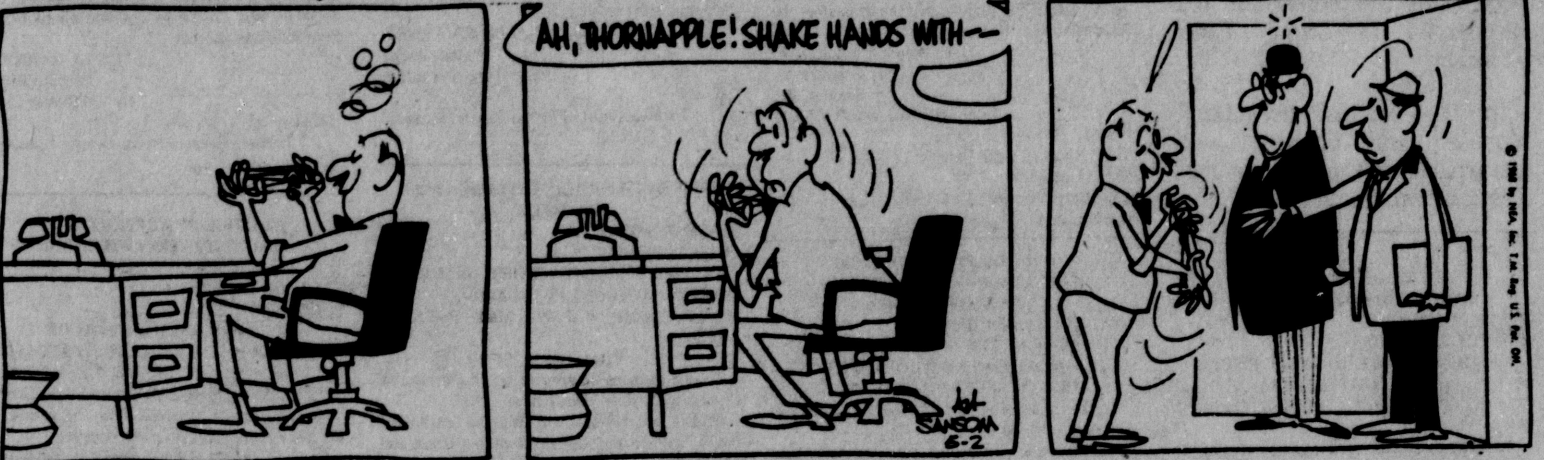

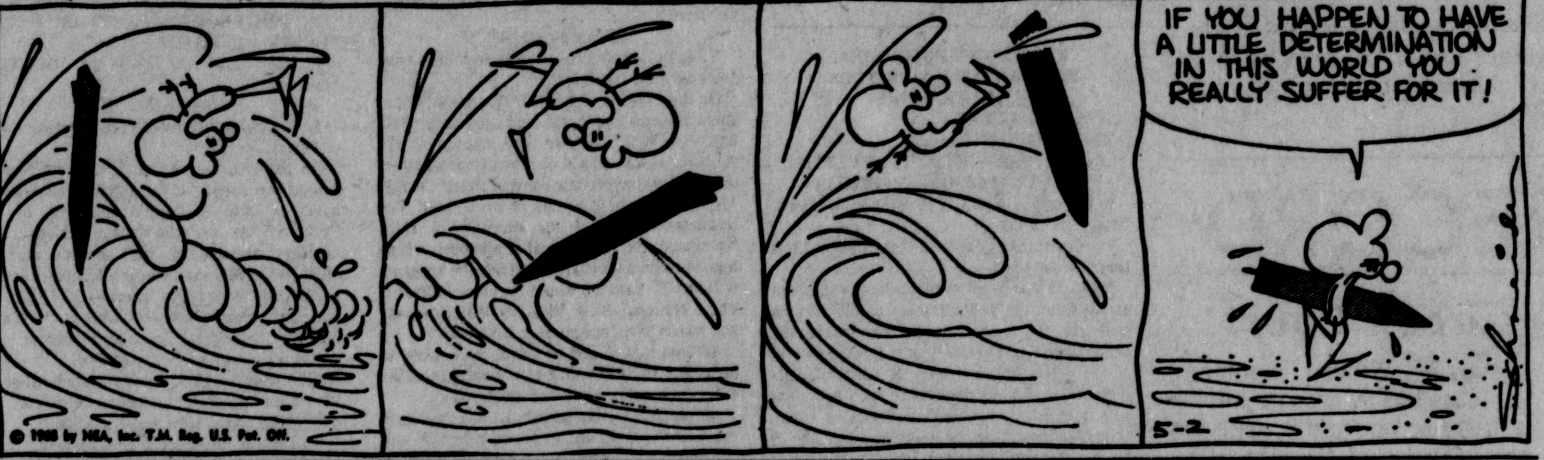

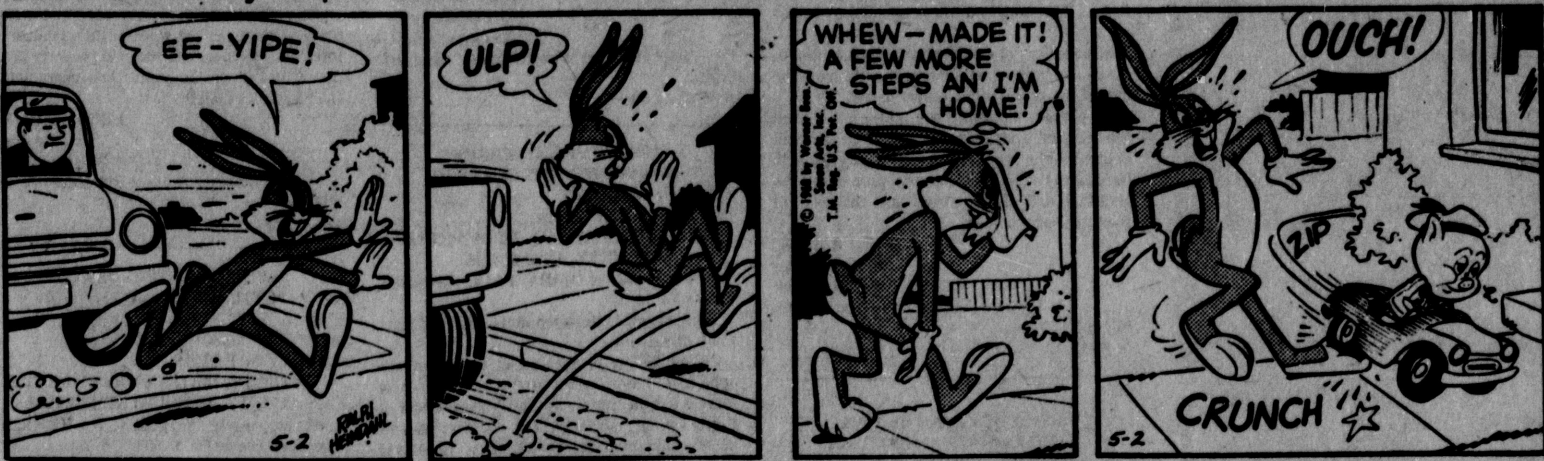

The LaMonte bank, twelve miles west of Sedalia was robbed of approximately $1,000 in a daring robbery at 9:30 in the morning. Within three hours, three bandits had been captured north of Knob Noster and placed in the Warrensburg jail. In the bank at the time of the robbery were President C. E. Terry; Cashier Foy Wade; Assistant Cashier, J. E. Wheeler and F. M. Crowder, a farmer. Forrest Winston and Willa Mae Dill, employed at the post office, entered the bank while the robbery was underway.

Mildewed Tile Floor Is Worrisome for Her

By POLLY CRAMER

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—Years ago we added a den to our very nice house and just recently extended this room to make it longer. I had white-and-gold cushion tile put down by the yard. In a matter of a month the floor started to mildew and now it is nearly all black. I am heartsick and the floor man said there was nothing I could put down as the slab is sweating from the bottom up. Surely someone among your many readers will have an answer for me.—EDNA

DEAR POLLY—We have glass doors over our fireplace opening and I always dreaded cleaning them. One day I decided to try oven cleaner on them. The one I used is a foam cleaner that is sprayed on and left for a few minutes. Wipe with paper towels, and what an easy job it is. Before I used this, if I let the doors go for two or three weeks, I often had to use a razor blade to remove the baked-on soot.—MRS. N. T.

DEAR GIRLS—Mrs. C. L. M. wrote concerning Marion's Pointer about curing her child of biting anything and everything by having her bite into a cake of soap. She said that years ago her father was warden in a penitentiary and rebellious prisoners would make themselves sick by chewing soap and then taking water so as to appear to be frothing at the mouth. Once they had serious consequences following such an episode. Washing a child's mouth out with soap has been a punishment for many of us, when children, for telling a lie but a manufacturer of soaps says that because of the many types of soap on the market, it could be harmful if they were EATEN and a child might vomit from eating PURE soap. Perhaps you mothers might substitute the following cure that came from a reader who sent no address.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—I want to tell Marion another way to cure her child of biting. Whenever the child starts to bite someone or something, try biting them back. I know this works—when I was little I bit another girl because she carrying me and I wanted to walk. She told my father and he bit me back. After that I never bit another person.—DEBBIE (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

BASEBALL

BOSTON (AP) — Jose Santiago, backed by the slugging of Ken Harrelson and Reggie Smith, posted his third victory of the season and his 11th straight since mid-1967 Thursday in hurling the Boston Red Sox to a 4-1 decision over California.

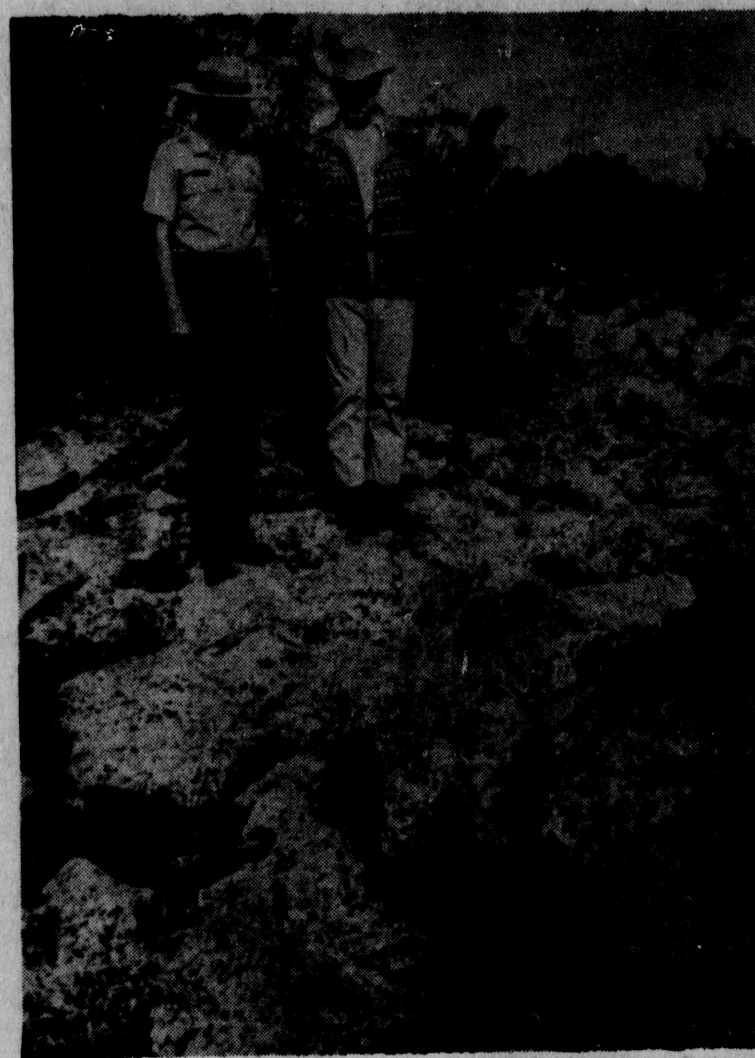

Santiago dazzled the Angels, allowing only three hits and striking out nine.

Harrelson, who has inherited the starting outfield berth vacated by ailing Tony Conigliaro, had three successive hits, driving in two runs, while Smith collected a pair of doubles.

The Red Sox broke a scoreless deadlock in the fourth when Smith lined a double to right and Harrelson scored him with a looping single to center.

The Angels tied the count on a walk, a sacrifice and Paul Schaal's two-out single in the fifth.

Harrelson put Boston in front to stay, leading off the sixth with his first homer, a blast against the wind into the left field screen. Three errors and a sacrifice fly by Russ Gibson provided another run in the ninth.

Remains of a Skull

Scientists have put on display in Washington what they describe as the oldest human remains ever discovered in the Western Hemisphere. It is a charred and broken skull believed to be between 11,000 and 13,000 years old, which was found at a site in southeastern Washington State soon to be flooded by a Federal dam. The skull was found in 1965 but it was dated accurately less than two weeks ago with discovery of other objects at the same site. (UPI)

Lost Hear Clearance On Charges of Immorality

WASHINGTON (AP) — A 22-year-old woman charged Thursday that her security clearance was revoked and that she was forced to resign from an Army job on the basis of reports that she was immoral—reports which, she said, she was not permitted to see.

Carolyn Lea Tatnall, a photographic information technician with the Army Map Service, said she was told by a government security officer the reports had come from neighbors in her apartment building. She said in an interview that she could find no one in the building who would admit to having talked to government investigators.

An Army spokesman denied that Miss Tatnall was forced to resign, but confirmed revocation of her security clearance.

"I don't understand it," she said. "I'm not promiscuous."

On Feb. 19, Miss Tatnall said, she underwent a 2½-hour interrogation session at the Pentagon. She said she was asked, among other things: Are you a homosexual? Have you ever had an abortion? Do you take birth control pills? She said she was told she would have to answer the same questions the following week in a lie detector test.

Miss Tatnall was never called back for the test, she said, but on April 2 a security officer and a representative from the personnel section of the Army Map Service told her that her security clearance had been revoked.

Miss Tatnall quoted the security officer as saying, "Based on the security reports that you are immoral and not of character to handle classified material, we are not only refusing you a top secret clearance, but we are also revoking any previous clearances that you have had. From now on you are not authorized to work with classified material of any sort."

She said he told her that "in mid-March the investigators went to your apartment and received a derogatory report on you . . . They came up with seven derogatory reports from that one building to confirm it. Do you give wild parties in your apartment? Apparently you shout and have violent fights and drinking sessions. Does someone else have a key to that apartment?"

Miss Tatnall said she replied that she didn't know of seven people who would say such things, that she has had only one party—a birthday party—in the six months she lived in the apartment and that she invited the neighbors so they wouldn't be disturbed by the noise and that her boyfriend had a key so he could feed her fish and her cat when she went home to Philadelphia on weekends.

She was told the following day by her superior, she said, that unless she resigned she would be fired. Miss Tatnall said she resigned and left work April 19.

Harold P. Dunning, personnel chief at the Army Map Service, said there had been a "routine background investigation" of Miss Tatnall but claimed no knowledge of any Pentagon interview.

There was no comment from the Pentagon.

Dunning said that Miss Tatnall was told that as a result of the background investigation her security clearance was being revoked "but I'm sure nobody told her to resign or be fired. I wouldn't permit anyone on my staff to talk to an employee like that."

However, Dunning said when Miss Tatnall's file was reviewed April 3, the day after she was notified, "it was decided we probably would institute removal procedures."

He refused to disclose the grounds for such procedures.

Miss Tatnall appealed to Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., who has a bill, now pending in the House, which would protect federal employees from unwarranted intrusion into their private lives.
